

Dick Hints Peace Progress

By MERRIMAN SMITH

NEW YORK (UPI)—President-elect Richard M. Nixon, endorsing the lame duck Johnson administration and saying its members speak for him, hinted that "some very significant action and progress toward peace" may come before he takes office in 69 days.

Nixon, standing beside the man he will succeed Jan. 20, warned the "parties on the other side" Monday that the two administrations stand united on Vietnam, the Middle East and relations with the Soviet Union.

The president-elect said Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk could conduct negotiations knowing "they could speak not just for this administration but for the nation and that meant the next administration as well."

Nixon's endorsement of Johnson's Vietnam policy moves over the next two months will put added pressures on the Saigon government of President Nguyen Van Thieu to reverse its stand and send a delegation to the expanded Paris talks, diplomatic sources said.

The president-elect conferred with Johnson Monday and was briefed by his top aides on foreign and domestic policy.

Nixon said the White House talks were helpful in "seeing to it that in the next 60 days—this very critical period—rather than having the lapse of a lame duck presidency, in effect we might have some very significant action and progress toward peace."

Neither Nixon nor his aides would elaborate on the reference to the possibility of progress in the Vietnam negotiations.

Nixon said there are too many critical international problems facing decision in Washington and the country could not afford a gap of two months in which no action or no negotiations could occur.

"If progress is to be made in any of these fields, it can be made only if the parties on the other side realize the current administration is setting forth policies that will be carried forward by the next administration," Nixon said.

After his afternoon meeting at the White House, Nixon flew to his headquarters in New York to continue putting together a new administration and preparing a budget for submission to Congress shortly after inauguration day.

Flying north from Florida Monday, Nixon and his wife went to the White House for lunch with the President and Mrs. Johnson. Then after a brief two-man meeting in the President's office, Nixon received nearly an hour and a half of briefing in the Cabinet room from ranking administration experts on foreign relations. Johnson arranged for Nixon to hear from Rusk, Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Central Intelligence Director Richard Helms and Walter W. Rostow, a foreign affairs specialist on the Johnson staff.

Johnson said he and Nixon realize the American people had a right to expect their government "to function efficiently at all times and he and I are going to do everything we possibly can to see that the wheels of government operate with maximum efficiency not only from now until Jan 20 but for all time to come."

Johnson indicated he anticipated further consultation with the president-elect before inauguration.

The Dreary Forecast: Snow and More Snow

By JEAN F. DOLAN

The first major snowstorm of the not yet winter season hit Ulster County early this morning, snarling traffic, downing tree limbs and closing schools.

With official winter more than a month away according to the calendar, many motorists were caught without the protection of snow tires and chains.

The forecasters peered into their snow covered crystal ball and came up with predictions which varied from three to five and eight to 12 inches during the six to 12 hour storm. Anyway you look at it that's a lot of snow for early November.

City Department of Public Works crews were out early this morning salting hills, bus routes and hospital accesses. The plows are on ready in case the accumulated white stuff reaches pushing depth.

Another factor which hampered travel and caused headaches for Central Hudson crews were falling trees and limbs. The heavy snow driven by northeast winds overloaded trees still wearing their fall foliage. Much of the trouble which accompanied Sunday's two to six inch snow fall was repeated over a wider area today.

The state highway department was harassed by equipment breakdowns and downed limbs all over the county. County highway department reported sanding crews and scrapers on the job early this morning trying to untangle the creeping cars.

State Police reported that Route 209 near Kerhonkson was completely blocked at approximately 9:30 as skidding vehicles clogged the road.

The reports of power interruptions throughout the area swamped the switchboard at Central Hudson. As heavy snows snapped tree limbs and power lines over a wide section of the Mid-Hudson valley, repair crews rushed to the scenes of trouble.

The N.Y. Telephone company faced a similar situation plus the overload of calls from stranded travelers trying to reach help and inform waiting employers.

Social and civic events were canceled left and right throughout the county.

The heavy snow which spread north and west across the state throughout the day came in from the south. Heavy snow warnings for Southeastern New York including Ulster County were out through tonight. By tomorrow the entire state will be under the cloud of rain and snow with heavy squalls predicted for the shores of Lake Erie and Ontario.

New York City had rain, sleet and winds gusting to 63 miles an hour just before dawn today.

Snow was falling in Southern Tier but the Mid-Hudson Valley was bearing the early brunt of the southern-born storm.

Last year's first major snowstorm of the season was a more timely Christmas season dumping of up to 10 inches in Kingston Dec. 28 and 29. Although the snows came Nov. 9 in 1967 it was a respectable half inch dusting which quickly melted.

This year's first was up to four inches on Nov. 10 followed by this unseasonable mess. And there is little consolation in knowing the area is not alone in the wide-spread wet blanket.

Harry Schirick, 78, Dies; On Court Bench 26 Years

Retired Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Schirick, 78, of 1 Albany Avenue, Kingston, died this morning.

From warming a bench as a rookie big league ballplayer with the St. Louis Browns in 1914 to serving 26 years on the Supreme Court Bench, Justice Schirick's colorful career continued until his retirement in 1960.

Born in Ruby, Ulster County on June 15, 1890, he was one of a family of ten children—seven boys and three girls. All of the justices' brothers and sisters are deceased. One brother was killed in World War I.

Justice Schirick moved to Kingston with his family at the age of four and one-half years, graduated from elementary school and the old Kingston Academy and later received his law degree from Cornell University.

It was during the summer of 1914 that the justice was signed by the St. Louis Browns, then managed by Branch Rickey.

Later Justice Schirick, in pursuit of a law career, became associated with the late Judge Frederick Stephan of Kingston. A Democrat, he was elected City Judge in 1916 and was reelected in 1920.

From 1920 to 1934, Judge Schirick was a law associate of Frank Brooks at 44 Main Street, Kingston until he was appointed by Gov. Herbert Lehman to fill a Supreme Court vacancy. The appointment went into effect Jan. 1, 1935 and the following year Justice Schirick ran for election to a 14-year term. His running mate was Justice Francis Bergan of Albany. At the expiration of the 14-year term, Justice Schirick was endorsed for a new term by both Republicans and Democrats in the Third Judicial District.

Guest of honor at a round of testimonials given by a number of bar associations and judiciary groups at the time of his retirement, Justice Schirick was also cited for his role as a dynamic political figure.

As Democratic county leader, he won a majority on the Board of Supervisors, a feat that Democrats have not repeated since (40 years).

In 1958 he was feted by the Old Timers Baseball Association and was given the association's annual award for being "the

Hercules Explosion Injures 2 Workmen

PORT EWEN—An explosion at the Hercules Powder Company plant that rocked the Port Ewen area this morning, severely injured two workmen and damaged the fuse press house where the blast occurred.

Admitted at Benedictine Hospital where they were rushed following the blast were John Emmick, 51, of 66 Harding Avenue and James Williams, 28, of 13 Russell Street. Their conditions were described as fair.

A company official said Emmick and Williams were the only two workmen in a concrete bay in the 20 x 60 foot building when the explosion occurred at 4:20 a.m. They were reportedly pressing fuse powder, it was said.

The cause of the explosion was not immediately determined, but officials of the company were investigating. The Hercules official said it didn't appear that damage to the structure, which was divided into concrete bays, was extensive although inspectors were examining the structure. The official also noted that he was awaiting word from the company physician about the extent of injuries suffered by the two men.

Early reports showed Emmick sustained multiple puncture wounds, Williams received blast injuries and possible punctures of the eardrums from the noise of the explosion.

Both Williams and Emmick have been employed by the Port Ewen firm several years. It was reported that other workmen attracted to the fuse press house rushed to the aid of the two injured men.

Family of 7 Perishes In Sullivan Holocaust

By WALTER S. CLARK

A family of seven perished early today when fire of undetermined origin erupted in their bungalow home at Camp Hemlock on Burlingham Road in the Sullivan County community of Bloomingburg about three miles north of Middletown.

The victims of the tragic blaze, which was discovered by a neighbor at about 4:30 a.m., apparently were suffocated before their bodies were burned, authorities said.

State Police identified the dead as:

Donald Terwilliger and his wife, Margaret (ages not available) and their five children, Peter, 8, Catherine, 7, Donald Jr., 6, Angel, 5, and Otis, 4.

According to investigators the fire was discovered by Jesse Hinkley, who resides next door. He was awakened by crackling of flames and smoke. Hinkley hurriedly donned his clothes and drove a quarter of a mile through blinding snow and over slippery roads to the home of Bartley Smith, where he used the telephone to notify fire officials.

Firefighters from Bloomingburg in command of Chief Harry Kramer made the run to the scene of the blaze within 15 minutes. On arrival they found the frame bungalow completely engulfed in flames.

Within minutes firemen were directing hose line streams of water into the roaring flames that were fanned by a strong wind.

About 20 minutes later firemen discovered one body in the burning building. Fire officials, immediately summoned state troopers from the Ferndale Station and notified Sullivan County Coroner Dr. Sidney P. Schiff, who went to the fire scene to take part in the investigation.

Troopers and firemen with Coroner Schiff searched through the burning embers of the house, handling piece by piece as they sought the bodies of the other victims.

All of the seven bodies were found burned almost beyond recognition on the beds in the two bedrooms of the small residence.

Preliminary examination by the coroner and physicians indicated that Terwilliger, his wife and five small children died of suffocation before the flames reached them.

Volunteer firemen experienced considerable trouble as they drove their cars over snow-packed roads to get to the fire scene.

The Terwilliger family lived at the bungalow the year round, state police were told, although most of the dwellings in Camp Hemlock are used only as summer camps.

It was not known whether a heating unit of whether defective wiring started the blaze which completely destroyed the dwelling.

Camp Hemlock, a popular summer resort in the Bloomingburg area, is operated by Charles Tarrow. No estimate of the loss was reported.

The bodies of the victims were removed to a morgue. State police sought relatives to notify them of the tragedy.

Terwilliger had been employed at a box factory in Middletown.

SEARCH CONTINUES—State Police Scuba divers have been combing the bottom of the Hudson River for five days in search of evidence that might aid in the solution of the unsolved murder of 23-year-old Robert D. Gallo of East Kingston. The victim was shot while hunting near his home on Oct. 20. Participating in the search which was halted temporarily on Monday were (l-r) Trooper B. S. O'Connor and Robert M. Malloy. They are working with Troopers J. E. Storch and R. W. Thorpe under command of Senior Trooper R. S. McDowell. (Freeman photo by Kruh.)

Historic Area Preservation

Efforts Receive Endorsement

By JEAN F. DOLAN
Enthusiastic endorsement of Kingston's efforts to preserve and reclaim historic sections of uptown has been given by officials of the Hudson River Valley Commission.

Fred Johnston, chairman of the city's Landmarks Preservation Committee and Harry Rigby Jr., city historian, met with Alexander Aldrich, HRVC executive and Louis Rubenstein, commission historian to outline early efforts and aims.

Rubenstein was in town Friday to view first hand the historic areas which were part of the first capital of New York State. While here he sat in on a meeting of the Landmarks Preservation Committee as plans for the part Kingston should play in the 200th anniversary celebration of the founding of the state in 1777 were discussed.

Plaudits Given
Enthusiasm was the keynote at both encounters. The HRVC personnel were aware that a preservation group existed in Kingston but the scope of their efforts came as a pleasant surprise, rating the plaudits of both Aldrich and Rubenstein.

The Landmarks Committee, formed by Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan two years ago was found to be a "serious dedicated group" not just a "social" historical society interested in some quaint old houses. Rubenstein applauded the two plans for preservation and reclamation devised by the committee to encompass the majority of 18th and 19th century buildings remaining in use in the uptown area. However, he felt the plans should be expanded to cover an even larger area.

50th ANNIVERSARY DINNER — Ulster County American Legion commemorated the 50th anniversary of the ending of World War I at a dinner last night held at Joyce Schirrick Post, 1386 Veterans of Foreign Wars, 552 Delaware Avenue. More than 60 men attended, according to Thomas Bohan who was in charge. Members exchanged stories on where they were and what they were doing when the armistice ending World War I was signed. Left to right are Bohan, dinner chairman, former Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman, co-chairman; William Hanley, co-chairman; Everett Emmick, commander and Clarence Hyde, co-chairman. Both Sides Criticize Ulster Town Budget

The $320,245 Town of Ulster budget for 1969 approved by the Town Board last Thursday was criticized from two sides today in statements from the Democrats and the Conservatives.

George Trowbridge, chairman of the Town of Ulster Conservative Party scored the Ulster Town Board for "lack of initiative, planning, logic and common sense," in preparation of the budget.

Walter D. Houle, Democratic town chairman called the Town Board, "irresponsible and extravagant."

Trowbridge, the Conservative said, "Taxes to be raised to meet general fund appropriations have multiplied 10 times over the past three years." Commenting further on the budget hearing, the Ulster Conservative said he was disturbed by "the lack of knowledge the Board had concerning implementation of the town's retirement system estimated to cost some $15,000; the $25,000 rock pile which might have been the town building complex, and the lack of planning for its future; the technique of determining salaries; lack of coordination between the Planning Board and the Zoning Commission, and implementation of results of the proposed planning study, particularly since these two services have been budgeted almost $17,000 over the past three years." Trowbridge scored what he called, "The lack of apparent details or backup behind budget figures as exemplified by the $5,000 park development appropriation which although several parks exist in the town, could not be broken down into how much for each park."

He cited "the indifference or defensive position shown by the Town Board to constructive suggestions and comments made at the hearing."

Houle, the Democrat, in his statement termed the Town Board "irresponsible and extravagant by granting salary increases and approving increases for mileage and for office expenses for themselves. The general tax rate in the town will more than double in 1969 as a result of this budget." Houle continued, "the citizens who attended the hearing received nothing more than vague and confusing answers. Specifically, the salary increases for the assessors were defended by Supervisor (Thaddeus) Musialkiewicz, who stated that the raises were what was requested by the incumbents. A mileage allowance for $65 is included for the supervisor, its exact purpose was not made clear."

"This budget will require that an increase of approximately $26,000 over 1968 then $10,000 was required," Houle said. "The accuracy of the figures which make up this budget and the wisdom of raising salaries at this time were defended by Supervisor Musialkiewicz, who stated that the budget was very tight. He turned away suggestions that the town sell the new surplus site of the proposed town hall and use the money to balance the budget."

Both Houle and Trowbridge suggested that the town hire an accountant to prepare the budget and both mentioned that a non-partisan committee be named to examine salaries of town employees.

NAACP Names Slate; Sets Dance for 15th

Ulster County Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People met in regular session at the New Central Baptist Church on the Strand last night and nominated a slate of officers for 1969.

Up for reelection are Everett Hodge, president; Mrs. Annie Jackson, treasurer and Mrs. William Windham, secretary. Milton Reynolds, a member of the Kingston Consolidated Board of Education, was nominated for the post of vice president. The election will be next month at the regular meeting of the organization on the 9th.

Final plans were made for a dinner-dance sponsored by the NAACP at Peg Leg Bates Country Club in Kerhonkson, Friday night. More than 50 couples have made reservations for the affair which is under the chairmanship of Hydreth Armstrong. Tickets are still available from any member of the NAACP.

Give Up Gas Probe in Ellenville

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

ELLENVILLE — The Brooklyn Union Gas Company has given up its attempt to find gas storage facilities near the Ice Cave Mountains at Ellenville.

According to Phillip Holt, project manager for the gigantic drilling operation, the hole that was dug on the mountainside was to be filled up by last night.

The hole is over 10,000 feet deep.

Holt did say, however, that "there was every chance, that new operations would begin again in the Ulster and Sullivan County region."

The Brooklyn-based company began its operations on Aug. 14 in an effort to locate certain porous rock formations that would best serve gas storing purposes.

The porous carbonate rock was not found.

This marked the second time a large gas and oil company made a vain attempt to find underground storage areas in Ulster County.

In 1964, Gulf Oil Company drilled into the rock of Lake Minnewaska without success.

The Ice Caves Mountains operation involved three four-man crews working 24-hour days for seven days a week.

Holt said that "the outlook was promising" in the beginning, "but you cannot anticipate what kind of problems you will meet in a drilling operation of this size."

The project manager explained that there was "a lack of experience" in the kind of drilling operation his company was committed to in Ellenville in that "no such wells have ever been drilled before."

One of the mechanical difficulties encountered was that the bit of the large drill had a tendency to move horizontally instead of vertically.

A directional hole expert from Texas was transported to the Ellenville area in an attempt to find the equation that would set the drill into a more horizontal path.

"There was still too much of an angle (in the drill) towards the end," Holt declared.

Holt said that his company wanted a storing area because the laws of supply and demand required a "fixed quantity" of the fuel for gas-using customers.

Had the underground storage area been found, gas would have been piped to the mountain, stored over the slack summer months, and then used to supply customers when the first cold days of autumn created a demand.

The gas is piped from offshore facilities at the Texas east coast and into the Gulf of Mexico.

The 5,300-acre mountain site to the east of the Village of Ellenville represents the largest single tract of land leased by the gas company.

The company has an option to lease about 40,000 acres of land in both Ulster and Sullivan.

center receives .50 per acre per year on the nine year lease that was signed in September of 1965.

Had Brooklyn Union Gas found the carbonate rock formations it was seeking, or if it found a natural gas vein, the village stood to benefit.

In the event of actual gas production, Ellenville would have been paid a one-eighth royalty of the market price for all the gas found.

If the elusive rock formations were found, the village would have been paid $1 per acre per year for the granting of the storage space.

"If you have one success in 10 (in the locating of an adequate underground storage area) you are lucky," said Holt, and he indicated that it would have been something close to a miracle had the first drilling struck pay dirt.

The mountain, part of the Shawangunk chain, serves the village in other ways. There are radio towers built on the mountain, the Ice Caves commercial enterprise brings sight-seers' money into the area, and the village reservoir is located there.

Holt explained that officials from the Oil and Gas Division of the New York State Department of Conservation were at the drilling site yesterday in an effort to insure that all precautions were taken to safeguard the rights of water well-users in the area.

Education Week Events Slated In Ellenville

American Education Week observance at Ellenville Central Schools will include a musical program and parent visitation.

Dates for the events are Wednesday at the high school and Thursday at the elementary school. Refreshments will be served at the conclusion of both programs.

Serving on American Education week committee are administrators and faculty members of the Ellenville School District. Planners include Thomas Hayden, Morris Kaufman, Vincent Stanger, Mrs. Marion Hannon, Miss Ida Besdesky, Mrs. Muriel Sashin, Mrs. Nancy Goodstein, Miss Barbara Risoli, Mrs. Lillian Lehman, Mrs. Mildred Solomon, Mrs. Shirley Williams and Alfred Johnstone.

The week is being observed through Nov. 16 in all areas schools.

Fire in Boiler Room At Hillcrest Gardens

Kingston firemen in command of Chief James M. Brett and Capt. Robert Schatzel were dispatched to the Hillcrest Gardens on Fairmont Avenue at 4:40 p. m. Monday, after fire was reported in the boiler room.

On arrival firefighters found heavy smoke in the six-apartment building, and on entering the boiler room they discovered the door of the burner had been blown out and fuel oil was burning on the floor.

CO-2, dry powder and pressurized water was used to quell the flames. Smoke was reported throughout the six apartments. The cause of the fire was listed as a malfunction in the burner.

The building is owned by Harry Bruskin of New Brunswick, N. J.

Mexican Youth Riots May Lead to Reform

By PHIL NEWSOM

Violent unrest among Mexican students exposed other areas of discontent which now seek a voice to give Mexico's ruling party its first real challenge in more than 30 years.

The violence began in July and extended well into October, and as the students hardened their position against the government they gained support from large numbers of bureaucrats, professional people and housewives in Mexico's growing middle class.

The movement began simply enough with student charges that police and troops had violated university autonomy which is a Latin American tradition.

As the government reacted with more police and troops, the students expanded upon their charges to include corruption among government functionaries and a claim that the economy mainly benefitted a new group of oligarchs which had replaced the dictatorship of the great landowners of prerevolutionary times.

Whether the student charges were valid was almost beside the point. They struck a popular chord.

For most of 40 years Mexico has been ruled by the IRP or Institutional Revolutionary Party, an umbrella party which was the outgrowth of the revolution of 1911 in which more than one million Mexicans died.

It is an all-embracing confederation of peasants, industrial workers and various other "popular" groups and it has given to Mexico that rarity among Latin American nations, a peaceful transition of power, political stability and a means of working out conflicts between various sectors of the economy. But its opponents also charge that in the intervening years it has become undemocratic and unresponsive to the rank and file, with a few leaders at the top making all the decisions. The president, it is charged, becomes an absolute monarch for the six years of his term and, when that ends, picks his own successor.

On its side, the government charges that the student groups have been infiltrated by Communists and others representing ideas not in the best interests of Mexico. Both have a certain amount of reason on their side.

The CNED (National Democratic Students' Central), for example, is flaming red and has support from some university professors.

Spain's Shifting Winds Far From Gentle Ones

(United Press International)

The brief news dispatch said that hundreds of Spanish police, backed by water cannon, had occupied the University of Madrid campus to prevent renewed outbreaks of violence.

Thirty policemen entered the school of law to tear down signs denouncing "repression."

The winds of change in Spain are not gentle ones.

They whip through the Basque country in the north where Basque nationalists are demanding an independent state composed of Spain's Basque provinces and the three adjoining predominantly Basque provinces in France.

They stir among young Catholic priests in rebellion against the church's conservative hierarchy.

And they move among the 12 million members of the government-controlled labor union who demand freedom to organize their own unions and the right to strike.

Spanish transformation has been going on since 1959, slowly and cautiously under the regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco who seeks the way to a peaceful transition of power

Against government figures showing impressive growth and the distribution of nearly 150 million acres of land to the peasants is the fact that many peasants still live on a bare subsistence level.

Opponents of the government and the IRP charge that it now pays more attention to its institutional character than it does to the ideals of the revolution. But the opposition so far still is only an idea seeking a voice.

upon his ultimate departure, too slowly for impatient students, young priests and workers.

As Spain has sought to widen its contacts with the outside world, it has at home adopted a new constitution which in theory at least granted new freedoms to Spaniards, abolished direct press censorship and given new recognition to religions other than Roman Catholic.

Through most of the years of gradual liberalization, it also fared well economically.

Beginning in 1961, its gross national product leaped forward at a rate of nearly 10 per cent per year.

But by the end of 1967 it appeared the Spanish economic miracle, at least temporarily had run its course, and added to Franco's difficulties.

Inflation for the year came to more than 12 per cent. Bankruptcies and lay-offs increased.

Complicating the picture still further were U.S. curbs on private foreign investments and devaluation of the British pound.

Government austerity measures increased popular unrest.

GI's Capture VC Suspects

SAIGON (UPI) — Swarming from helicopters, boats and trucks, 2,000 American soldiers surrounded a Mekong Delta village and captured 153 suspected Viet Cong trapped inside, U.S. headquarters said today.

The U.S. 9th Division infantrymen set their trap before dawn Monday and killed six Viet Cong who tried to break the encirclement of a village near Ca Lay, 40 miles southwest of Saigon.

House-to-house searches turned up 153 suspected Viet Cong who will be questioned and released if interrogators are convinced they are not Communists. It was one of the biggest catches in months.

The action coincided with statements by Gens. Creighton W. Abrams and Andrew J. Goodpaster, commander and deputy commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, that Communist offensive power had been broken and that American might now was aiming at routing out the local level Viet Cong struggling to survive.

In addition, five 50-foot U.S. Navy "swift" boats Monday raided a Viet Cong river deep in the Delta and reported damaging or destroying 143 primitive guerrilla warehouses, 141 supply boats and 23 shore line bunkers. The U.S. command also announced the loss of the first U.S. warplane shot down since President Johnson halted the bombing of North Vietnam—a Marine A4 Skyhawk downed in South Vietnam's northernmost province Monday. Its pilot was killed.

Plaudits For the Mansion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pat Nixon says a tour of the White House with Lady Bird Johnson revealed that the executive mansion is "a house that shows someone cares."

"I have been here several times, but I have never seen the house as I have today," said Mrs. Nixon Monday after seeing the house with Mrs. Johnson as guide.

Mrs. Nixon, who will become the first lady in January, said the visit gave her a chance to see renovations completed during the Kennedy administration.

The girls came here as tourists, stood in line and went through the house on various occasions," said Mrs. Nixon.

The two wives paid a good deal of attention to the closets, according to Mrs. Johnson's press secretary, Elizabeth Carpenter.

The tour brought out the first word that the White House closets were undergoing complete refurbishing by the New York firm of Hammacher Schlemmer as a gift to the nation.

The two wives also had time for a fireside chat in the second-floor yellow oval drawing room. Mrs. Nixon met the Johnsons' granddaughter, Lucinda.

"This is a great house, beautifully run by a staff that will do everything possible to make you comfortable and happy," Mrs. Johnson told her guest.

U. S. Hopeful on Talks in Paris, Saigon and Hanoi Are Unyielding

PARIS (AP) — U.S. diplomats held out hope today that the Vietnam peace talks will resume soon but Saigon and Hanoi were publicly unyielding.

One U.S. source said the expanded parley, postponed from Nov. 6, might begin within two weeks. But he added there are differing views among U.S. delegation members about how long it will take to work out an agreement with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

President-elect Richard M. Nixon's statement that the Johnson administration speaks for him on foreign affairs until he takes office Jan. 20 gave important backing to the efforts of U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and his team.

The U.S. delegation has not heard yet whether Nixon will send an advance man to observe the talks. Henry Cabot Lodge U.S. ambassador at Bonn, has been mentioned as a possibility. Lodge was twice ambassador to Saigon, and Nixon's running mate in the 1960 presidential race.

The Paris talks are stalled by Thieu's refusal to attend any conference at which the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front does not have diplomatic status inferior to that of Thieu's government. U.S. negotiators began consultations Monday with South Vietnam's observer in Paris, Pham Dang Lam, looking for a basis for compromise.

But in Saigon, a spokesman for Thieu repeated the president's demands and said South Vietnam "will never give equal status at the peace talks to the Hanoi dominated NLF."

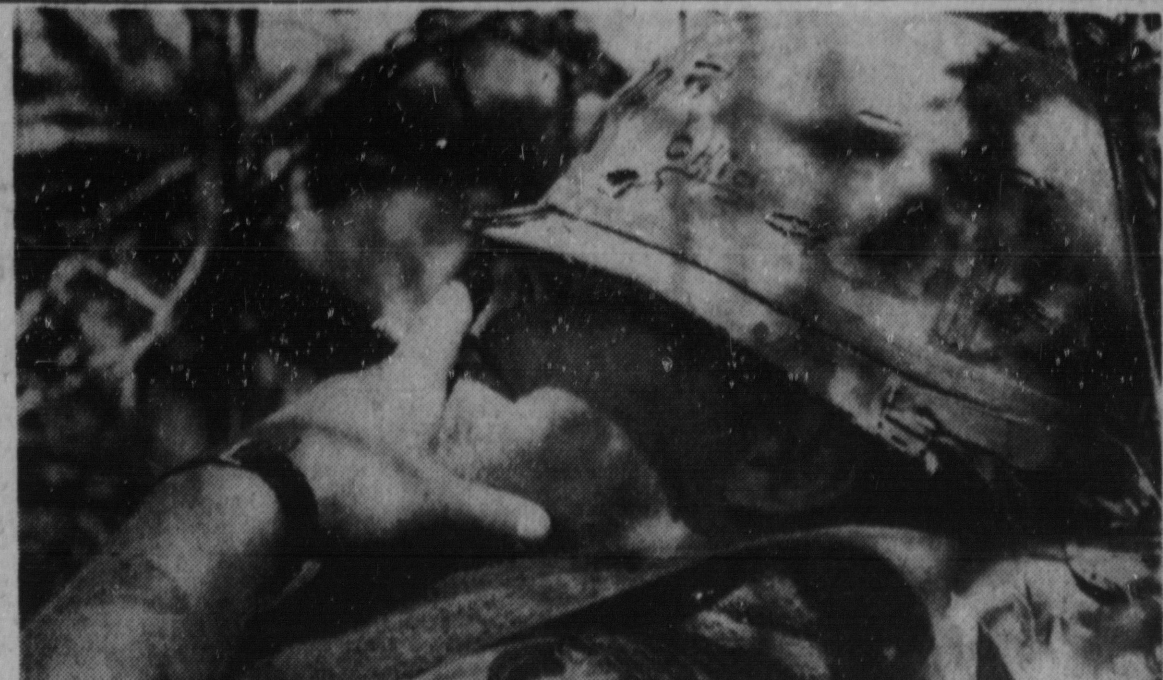

Information Minister Ton That Thien said recognition of the NLF would amount to recognition of three Vietnams instead of the present two.

"We will never accept a vague understanding," he declared. "We want specific guarantees that the NLF will not be seated as a separate delegation."

The Communists held a mass rally in Paris at which they blamed the United States for the breakdown in negotiations.

Hanoi's chief delegate to the talks, Xuan Thuy, declared "a war-mongering American faction" was encouraging Thieu to balk at joining the talks because it wanted the stall the peacemaking process.

Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, the chief NLF delegate, made similar charges. She shared the speakers' platform with Thuy under a large portrait of North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh.

Dissident Priests Stage A Sit-In

WASHINGTON (AP) — A band of dissident priests have besieged the nation's Roman Catholic bishops with a sit-in at the plush hotel amid signs that the church leaders may soften the interpretation of Pope Paul VI's ban on artificial birth controls.

A proposed pastoral letter pending before the National Conference of Catholic Bishops moves tentatively toward making birth control a question of conscience for each married couple—a stance that could cushion Pope Paul VI's controversial ban on all contraceptives.

"Sing Impossible Dream"

But the bishops said they had no power to intervene in the dispute swirling around 40 Washington priests penalized by Patrick Cardinal O'Boyle after they dissented against his rulings that the Pope's edict prohibited any use of contraceptives.

About 200 priests, singing "The Impossible Dream," marched into the bishops' hotel at nightfall Monday to show support for the 40.

They sat-in for three hours before Archbishop John F. Dearden of Detroit, head of the conference, finally met with them and received an appeal asking the conference to require mediation of their dispute with the cardinal.

The contraceptive issue is dominating the bishops' five-day fall session which began Monday. A final stand on the controversy is expected to be shaped in secret debate starting Wednesday.

The proposed version of the pastoral letter already handed out to the bishops also probes the morality of the Vietnam war and takes a stand in favor of selective conscientious objection to a specific war. But the bishops refused to spell out any details in advance of their vote.

A civil engineer picketed the hotel Monday with a sign showing red flames and the inscription: "To Hell with Dissenting French Bishops—Obey the Pope."

About 300 priests from as far away as San Antonio and Seattle met during the day Monday to ask the U.S. bishops to step in the punishment dispute. Many of them, led by clergymen cast out from their rectories by Cardinal O'Boyle, marched a mile to the hotel to deliver the appeal.

The priests prayed in the lobby, sang hymns and ate sandwiches until Archbishop Dearden appeared before them to accept their appeal. The Rev. Thomas Reese of Wilmington, Del., a spokesman for the priests, said afterwards, "It's a calculated risk—it may do more harm than good. But we're hopeful."

Long Voyage

SARATOGA, Wyo. (AP) — The first grade class of Mrs. Len Denson at Saratoga Elementary School signed a note last year, put it in a bottle and dropped it into the North Platte River.

The note said: "Whoever finds this bottle please send this card back and tell us when and where you found it."

Mrs. Denson recently received a reply mailed from Lexington, Va., by Emil Smith. It said "found on bank of the Mississippi river near Memphis, Tenn., July 29, 1968."

The bottle, apparently had floated over five major dams on the North Platte, Missouri and Mississippi rivers before being washed ashore near Memphis, nearly 2,000 miles away.

Oil Barge Adrift on Delaware

NEW YORK (AP) — The Coast Guard said today that a barge carrying 1,085,000 gallons of oil was adrift off Delaware Bay and threatening to run aground, possibly polluting the bay area.

The barge, the Hess Hausler, 60 knots and seas were running broke free of a tow line to the 12 to 15 feet early today, pre-tugboat Palmer Gaillard at venting Coast Guard rescue about 2 a.m. today in fierce seas from reaching the barge. The men aboard were not identified and the barge did not carry radio equipment, the spokesman said.

Soviets Challenge the U. S. As Power in Mediterranean

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union today declared itself a Mediterranean power and challenged the U.S. Navy's 6th Fleet activity in the strategic sea.

Vice Adm. Nikola Smirnov, writing in the defense ministry newspaper Red Star, accused the 6th Fleet of trying to dominate the Mediterranean "in order to be prepared to strike blows from the sea and air against enemy targets by using nuclear and conventional weapons."

"The Soviet Union and other socialist countries are named as the principal enemy," he said.

The admiral said, "The Soviet Union, which is known to be a Black Sea and hence Mediterranean power, could not remain indifferent to the machinations of lovers of military ventures . . ."

He said a Soviet fleet is in the Mediterranean as "a certain guarantee of peace and security in the area."

The reported presence of up to 60 Soviet warships in the sea was having a major effect on Western allied strategy, according to reports from Paris and Brussels.

In Paris, diplomats said the Russian naval presence is causing President Charles de Gaulle of France to study the possibility of rejoining the military alliance of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). Diplomatic sources said French intelligence reports of growing Russian naval base interests in Algeria, were causing De Gaulle growing concern. Allied intelligence said up to 15,000 Russian troops now are in Algeria. France's former colony across the Mediterranean.

In Brussels, NATO leaders were meeting this week amid calls for strengthening their alliance in the face of the Czechoslovak invasion and the buildup of Soviet naval might in

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 12, 1968

The Blitz Begins

The annual Fall hunting blitz is getting underway here. Hunters now are out after various small game. The deer season, which will open November 18, will attract an army into the woods. If a touch of asperity appears to underlie these remarks, it is occasioned by one dismal circumstance. This is that an enormous number of hunters, perhaps the majority, only get into the field two or three times a year. They simply do not get enough practice to be adept at handling a gun.

Add these, the inept gun handlers, to the many who have been hunting enough to know better but are still careless and sloppy about firearms. It all builds up to a hazard that takes the fine edge of pleasure out of hunting. It's still fun, but it would be a lot more fun if more hunters would learn and follow the safety rules.

The rules for handling rifle or shotgun are not complicated. Anybody not familiar with them can find out quickly what to do and what not to do with a gun. Any man who knows the rules but doesn't follow them is an irresponsible citizen not fit to be afield with a gun. Hunting is a pleasure for many people each Fall, but it can be death to some of them because of such irresponsibility.

Air Power and Viet War

When the Vietnam war ends and an authentic history of it is written, one of the most intriguing chapters should be the one that treats of the bombs the U.S. dropped on targets in both North and South Vietnam — and how the enemy was able to fight on despite this destruction from the skies.

It defies belief that the bombs dropped on North Vietnam — 500,000 tons — is roughly equal to what was dropped on Japan in World War II, and with somewhat questionable results. Despite the many restrictions imposed by official policy, the fact is that a poor, small nation with no retaliatory striking force and with pathetically small jet fighter strength still wages war and stands defiant at the Paris talks. Relying chiefly on plentiful and sophisticated anti-aircraft batteries, and only to a minor degree on Soviet-furnished surface-to-air missiles, the Hanoi fighting men have blasted almost 1,000 U.S. planes from the sky with 700 Americans known dead, and another 600 listed as missing.

As if befuddled by the inconclusive results of this one-sided bombing assault, Washington has fumbled badly since 1965 in trying to explain just what our bombing was supposed to accomplish. First they said it was a morale booster to the battered and reeling populace of the South; then they decided it was to reduce the infiltration rate of the North Vietnamese into the south to join the Viet Cong; then they changed that to the claim it was a lesson to Hanoi that those who commit aggression would have to pay a high price in return.

The generals and the admirals will explain 42 months of bombing ineffectiveness — the restrictions, the carefully selected targets, the limitation in tonnage, the declaration of the port of Haiphong as "off limits," and the ban on populated areas as targets. No one can gain-say the validity of these arguments, but there remains the question in the minds of many who recall what strategic and tactical air power did to Germany and Japan in World War II. The idea that a tiny nation virtually without fighter planes and with no bombers of her own could withstand for several years even the restricted raids launched against her and still be able to move men and the heavy rockets and artillery-type weapons to fight the ground forces of the Americans and South Vietnamese would have been ridiculed a few years ago by advocates of air power.

Perhaps the Vietnamese war has forced a reappraisal of the role of planes in at least certain types of war.

Democratic Congress

Slight gains made by Republicans in both houses of Congress do not affect its control and therefore present Richard M. Nixon with the fact that he will govern with committees of Congress under Democratic chairmen who can bottle up his recommendations and otherwise upset his programs for the country.

The assurance given by Senator Mike Mansfield, the Democratic leader, of loyal support "when he is right"; constructive alternatives when they disagree, should make for harmony. However, this does not bind such individualists as Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, or Senator J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

On the other hand, it will be remembered that Dwight D. Eisenhower only had one Republican controlled Congress, the first two years of his eight years in office, and managed to get along well with the Democrats who then led the two houses. They were Speaker Sam Rayburn and Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson.

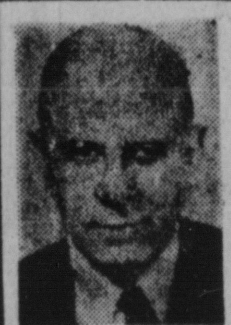

Nixon learned how Eisenhower managed to get much of his program through Democratic controlled Congresses, and no doubt will adopt some of those methods. Also going for him is the fact that on many measures, he will find conservative support across party lines, for newcomers in both houses have increased the conservative tendencies of the recent 90th Congress.

A Little Child Shall Lead Them

David Lawrence Says

Makeshift Majority Commands 91st Congress

WASHINGTON—One of the strangest things that can happen in a National Election occurred last week when a Republican won the presidency and neither the Republican nor Democratic Party found itself sure of a permanent majority in Congress.

Although 218 seats in the House of Representatives, for instance, constitute a numerical majority and 243 Democrats won last Tuesday, the points of view and philosophies of many of the men elected do not assure that their votes will always be cast for their own party except on matters of a routine nature and the selection of committee chairmen.

It seems certain, however, that on most of the controversial issues a conservative majority will control each House of Congress. This conclusion can be drawn from an examination of the way Democrats were elected in states that were carried by Nixon and also the manner in which Republicans were elected in states carried by Humphrey or Wallace.

In Southern States, moreover, several Democrats were elected to Congress who were considered more conservative even than their Republican opponents and were, in a few cases, helped by money from Nixon supporters. In other states, some incumbent Democrats had already, by their votes in Congress, established conservative records and were preferred by Republican voters.

It is a lucky thing that the Wallace ticket in nearly all states did not have any congressional candidates on it. For this would have confused the situation and caused the defeat of some conservative candidates from both of the major parties.

The best way to analyze the unusual results in the elections for the House of Representatives is to examine the changes in the party lineup between the outgoing and incoming Congress. This is shown in the following tabulation of the number of Republicans and Democrats in the House in the states carried by Humphrey and Nixon:

	Humphrey Nixon	D. R. D. R.
90th Congress	102 60 116 122
91st Congress	101 61 113 125

Certainly there were very few of the winners in the south who, while running on the Democratic ticket, did not fail to make speeches that would attract Wallace or Nixon votes. If the 29 Democrats and six Republicans elected in the Wallace states are added to the Republican total of 186 derived from the states that Humphrey and Nixon carried, this makes 221, which is three more than is necessary for a majority.

Also, all of the 39 Democrats elected in the southern and border states which Nixon carried cannot be regarded as opposed to Nixon's policies. In fact, a large number of them will doubtless be found voting for the Republican President's recommendations. This would add 20 or 30 more votes to the 221 total given above, making it possible for 241 to 251 votes to be recorded in favor of various proposals of the Nixon Administration.

So far as the senate is concerned, there are 18 Democratic Senators from the southern and border states carried by Nixon or Wallace who, if they voted with the 42 Republicans in the new Senate, would give Republican pieces of legislation a 60 to 40 majority. Not all of these 18 Democrats might do so, but a comfortable margin for the passage of bills urged by the Nixon Administration is to be expected.

Many of the candidates for Congress on the Democratic ticket did not want to desert their party because, if re-elected, they would be eligible for the chairmanship of a committee or for a high-ranking spot under the Seniority System which might eventually lead to a chairmanship.

It is true, of course, that in many of the congressional contests, local issues had much to do with the result. Also, a number of Democrats made a determined effort in their speeches to win the votes of Republicans.

Some day a system of party responsibility will have to be established in America so that the people will be voting for a party ticket based upon previous commitments and acknowledged obligations to the party by both the President and the candidates for Congress. For unless some form of discipline is imposed, makeshift majorities will continue to be in command, as will be the case in the 91st Congress which begins its session on Jan. 6, 1969.

Nixon Task: A Greater GOP

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — One of President-elect Richard Nixon's major tasks will be to rebuild the Republican party as a national vehicle.

If this sounds absurd for a party that has just won the presidency, it is not. For the "winning" party stands in a virtual tie with the Democrats in the popular presidential vote. The GOP picked up a bare handful of House seats, leaving the Democrats with an edge of roughly 50. And though it gained several Senate seats, it remains in almost a 6-4 deficit situation there.

The country was supposed to be in the worst mood of protest it has known since the Great Depression. Domestic turmoil, a controversial war and an unpopular President Johnson seemed the ingredients for a massive political turnover. It did not occur.

By contrast, in 1946, when the Republicans capitalized on the transitory frustrations of a nation suddenly released from the burdens of World II, they picked up 56 House seats and 13 in the Senate to take firm command of the entire Congress.

On the other hand, two years afterward, when President Truman's popular vote margin was 2 million and his electoral edge sizable in the end, the Democrats gained 75 House and 9 Senate seats.

Set against such performances as these, the Republican showing in 1968 appears mystifying on the surface.

Millions of Americans growling and grumbling, if not shouting, over the way things are, produced a result that seems to leave the country nearly on dead center, to deprive Nixon of any kind of mandate, to hobble him in the legislative field.

The easy things to say are that many Americans are disgusted with both major parties, were not particularly attracted to either Nixon or Vice President Humphrey, and viewed this election with all the fascination they reserve for a scoreless tie in football.

All of this may be true, but it does not say enough. It is not unexpected that the Democrats, tired, long in office, saddled with war and chaos, should be mistrusted.

But it is harder to understand, at first blush, why Americans in this troubled time would not plunge a good deal more heavily toward the Republicans when they would do so in 1946 — a time of far more superficial difficulties.

One reason may be that the GOP, riding the crest with

American Election Played Part In Timing of Bombing Halt

WASHINGTON—It's clear to those who read the secret dispatches that the American election played a part in the timing of the bombing halt.

The South Vietnamese wanted to elect Nixon and tried to delay. The Russians figured Nixon would win so they persuaded the North Vietnamese to make their move before the election on the assumption it would be easier to deal with Lyndon Johnson than Nixon.

The Russians became convinced in September that Nixon would win the election. Therefore they persuaded Hanoi that they would get the most favorable terms by seeking an agreement during the campaign. They argued that President Johnson should be willing to end the bombing in order to help elect Hubert Humphrey.

Once the United States started down the road to peace, Soviet diplomats felt, Nixon would be unable to turn back.

The first break came on Oct. 9 when the North Vietnamese made cautious overtures to the United States at Paris. Eventually this led to the bombing halt which President Johnson announced on Oct. 31.

The South Vietnamese also had the American election in mind, however, when they refused to participate in the new peace negotiations. They remembered that Nixon, when Vice President in 1954, had favored sending U.S. ground troops to what was then French Indo-China, and they figured he would take a harder line as President and save them from making the concessions which Johnson was demanding. So their leaks about the bombing pause and their refusal to attend the Paris talks were intended to prevent Humphrey from getting any political mileage from the bombing pause.

Now that the bombing has stopped, the President next will push ahead and seek a ceasefire. He is ready to scale down the fighting in South Vietnam as fast as the enemy will do the same. He is keeping Nixon informed of these moves in considerable detail.

The Enemy Subsidies

Reconnaissance planes and spy satellites are now keeping an hour-by-hour check on military movements in North Vietnam. Electronic devices, infrared cameras and other secret gadgets are also monitoring the movement down the infiltration routes into South Vietnam. President Johnson has assured his military commanders that he will resume the bombing if North Vietnam takes advantage of the moratorium by building up its strength in the south but it looks as if this would not be necessary.

Enemy infiltration south has dwindled from 25,000 men in July to 2,000 men moving south in October. Five of the seven North Vietnamese divisions in the south have also pulled back across the border. The demilitarized zone has been cleared of North Vietnamese units. There are no enemy concentrations within 50 miles of Saigon.

Gen. Creighton Abrams, the American commander, has acknowledged that a serious enemy offensive is now impossible and that the enemy can no longer build up for a surprise attack without our knowledge. Hit-and-run guerrilla attacks can be expected to continue, but it would seem that North Vietnam is moving in good faith towards a truce.

Traveling in Comfort

Three Air Forces generals who like to travel in comfort have fixed up a C-135 transport plane with a plush, new interior for their personal use. They are: General James Fergusson, Jack Merrell and Harry Goldsworth.

They sent the plane, serial number 6122663, to Tinker Air Force Base, Oklahoma, for remodeling. There they ordered installed soundproofing, interior walls, overhead lighting, bunks, reupholstered seats and an easy chair and table. The plane is also being fitted with new navigational and electronic gear.

The Air Force, when queried, stated that the general had scrounged interior fixtures from scrapped Air Force planes and that they would be permitted to use the plane only on authorized, official trips.

Race to Moon

America's astronauts are eager to accept whatever personal risk is necessary to beat the Russians around the moon.

Space officials are now trying to make up their minds whether to take a chance on a manned flight to the moon and back next month. The safest course would be one simple swing around the moon. But the astronauts would like to make several orbits of the moon before heading back to earth. This could be dangerous.

However, the astronauts believe it's worth the risk. Space officials have promised to make a decision this week, probably today (Nov. 12).

Diplomatic Pouch

Another crisis may be brewing in Berlin. Intelligence reports warn that the East Germans will begin by increasing red tape and obstructing the flow of traffic into Berlin. Several Pentagon generals have urged the Joint Chiefs of Staff that we rush another American battalion or two into Berlin as a show of strength. The Russians are having almost as much trouble with Czech students as New York had with University of Columbia students or as President Diaz Ordaz had with Mexican students. There isn't much Russian troops can do with student demonstrators, unless they want to engage in wholesale shooting. It was kept a secret, but 130 Mexican students were killed by the Mexican army before student riots in Mexico were finally suppressed.

Henry J. Taylor Says

New American Foreign Policy

The Nixon Administration's reappraisal of our foreign policy rests on flagrant world frailties that are as agonizing as they are complex.

Misunderstood or not, and in spite of its faulty execution, America's basic position is sound. We stand against aggression, direct or indirect. We defend the independence of other free nations, large and small. We oppose imperialism and any exploitation of colonial peoples. We give much and ask nothing — except peace.

Today that concept faces a formidable, ruthless, relentless and obvious challenge from international communism. Its objectives are won not by faith but by fear, force or fraud. And while the cold war may appear eased in some eyes the aggressions persist and the hidden war remains everywhere.

This has made it manifestly hard to adhere steadily to our national idealism and at the same time avoid the catastrophe of war against the atom-armored Soviet Union.

Meanwhile, the bare-foot millions in so-called have-not countries are multiplying at the rate of 20 million a week, also subject to the Communist imperialistic drive for power by a disciplined minority with welfare as its cloak.

In most such areas democracy is merely a word and the demagogue, the terrorist and the psychopath are increasingly proven to emerge as the masters of their nations.

It should be self-evident that we cannot be loved by everybody. Actually, a crusading spirit in that problems for us than it cures. About all we can do is to recognize our limitations and our enemies without emotion and with thoughtful care, because that is as important as selecting our friends. Moreover, it is respect, not popularity, which counts in diplomacy.

Where does all this leave us in Western Europe? Many Europeans feel that, merely by being American this makes it impossible for us to understand them or to judge Europe. Also, they seem to have constructed dogmas regarding our country, some so rigid that millions reject whatever we say or do that does not happen to conform to these dogmas.

It has become apparent that the majority of our Western European allies are not emotionally, politically or economically capable of taking our side against the Sino-Soviet in the cold war and, with this, their trust in some magic formula and hokuspokus has grown.

Millions equate the U.S.S.R. and U.S.A. as just two big monsters with little or no choice between their methods or purposes, too powerful for anybody else's good. This is a comforting philosophy that rids them of any feeling of moral obligation or of commitment, or even of the need too study, recognize and guard against the glaring facts of history. The policy sponsored is tied to the surface of things; break the surface and it sinks.

Accordingly, NATO's only look is not of dynamism, but of division, desuetude and decay — with many seeing as symbolic the fact that this cold war instrument held its last meeting in Iceland; which contributes no armed forces whatever.

Faced by a world situation as complex as this, surely our first step must be to abandon all blabbermouth diplomacy and realize that the United States can not do with words and dollars what it fails to do with brains. We must supply our aid not according to our desires but according to our powers. And we must not meddle where we cannot mend.

A new American foreign policy should be rooted on five basic principles:

The credibility gap must be closed; the deed and the word must be the same — respect for the United States is our first line of defense. Our foreign policy must never — never — proceed on the basis of domestic politics here at home. We must abandon the infatuation with so-called world opinion, which is never defined. We must be seen to support our friends; but the American interests differ greatly in the world and we should not seek to be all things to all men. We should define America's interests clearly in each place and stop trying to be a mother to the entire human race.

In simple truth, the Sino-Soviet strength is not of itself so great as it has been made great by the weaknesses in our own previous policies.

Charge 11 With Conspiracy In Eight Detroit Bombings

DETROIT (AP) — Eleven youths face prison terms of up to 25 years each if convicted on charges connected with eight bombings in the Detroit area in recent months.

The accused, including two girls, stood mute at their arraignments in Detroit Recorder's Court Monday. The group, ranging in ages from 18 to 24, are charged with conspiracy to place explosives with intent to do damage.

The explosions all damaged public property in Detroit, Ann Arbor, Roseville and St. Clair Shores and dated back to Aug. 30. No one was injured in the blasts which occurred in the evening or early morning.

Bombings rocked three Detroit police parking lots, a building housing two Roseville draft boards, the South Lake school administration building in St. Clair Shores, a parking lot at an Army recruiting office in Detroit, a CIA office in Ann Arbor and the Institute of Science and Technology building at the University of Michigan.

Police, who had warrants for the arrests of eight others, said,

"Their motivation appears to be antiestablishment." Police said the racially mixed group did not appear to be part of an organization.

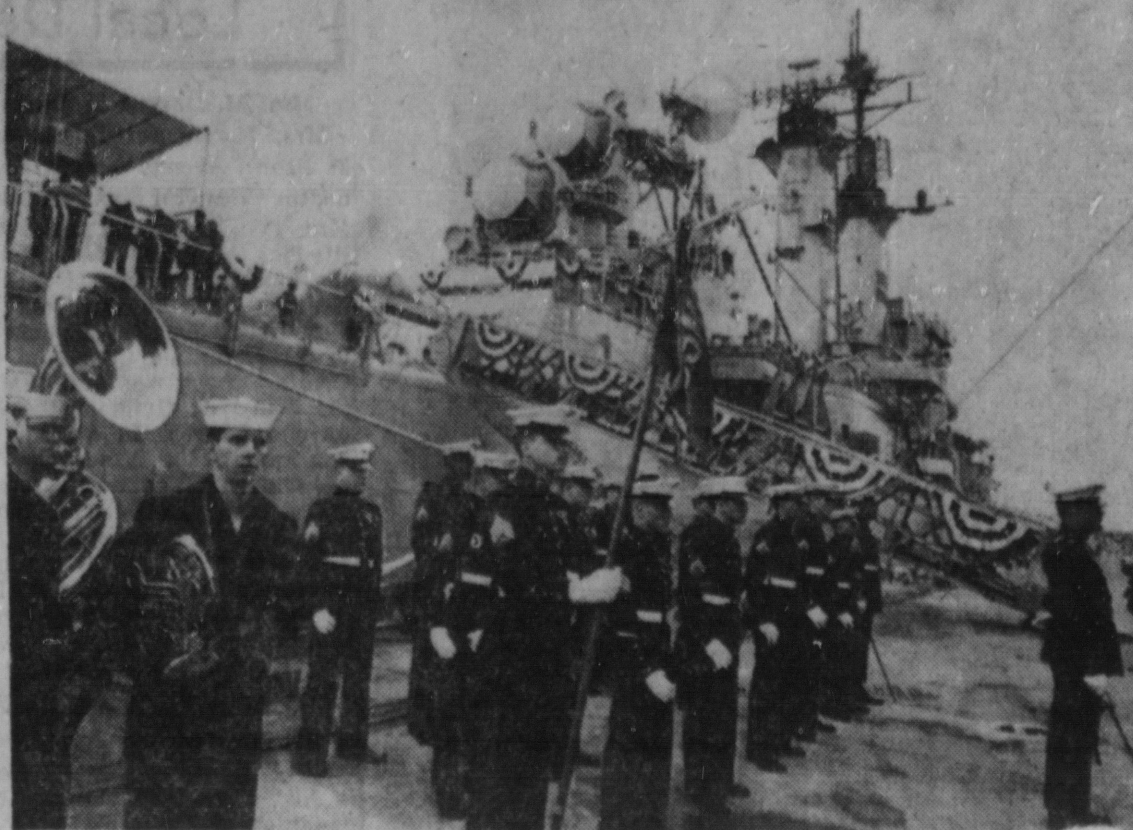

Despite police characterization of the defendants as "hippies," they were for the most part dressed in conventional sports clothes without any hippie trinkets. One young man wore shoulder length hair and another had a wispy goatee.

Arrested were David J. Valler, 24; Ronald Pierce, 18; John Schmittroth, 19; William T. Ladd, 20; James R. Moscara, 18, and Diedra Flowers, 20, all of Detroit. Others were Joseph Clever, 19; Antoine Daghuyl, 18; Gary R. Miltimore, 19, and Sandra Rousseau, 20, all of St. Clair Shores and Benjamin H. Parks, 20, of Highland Park.

Preliminary hearings were set for Nov. 19.

Lightning Strikes Plane Carrying Agnew

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Lightning twice struck the "birthday flight" plane carrying Vice President-elect Spiro T. Agnew and his family to Puerto Rico Monday for a vacation. No one was hurt.

Agnew was so busy enjoying an impromptu party on the plane, thrown by family and friends to celebrate his 50th birthday, he said he wasn't aware of what happened until "the pilot told me."

The group included Mrs. Agnew, their four children and their baby granddaughter, several friends and Secret Service men.

The Air Force Convair 580 apparently was undamaged. It landed at 8:35 p.m. EST and Agnew's party immediately boarded three Marine helicopters for the 15-minute flight to the Dorado Beach Hotel, on the island's north coast.

Agnew discussed the flight calmly upon his arrival and casually mentioned the lightning after describing his vacation plans. He indicated the bolts hit after the plane took off from Patrick Air Force Base, in Florida, where it had refueled.

One source at Kennedy Airport in New York said planes in flight are struck by lightning from time to time without untoward effects.

Ray Seeking Delay, 1969 Trial Likely

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray's new lawyer, towering Texan Percy Foreman, was to ask postponement today of Ray's trial in the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Despite the lateness of the escaped convict's switch of a lawyer, Judge W. Preston Battle was to go along with the motion to put the trial off, probably until after the first of the year.

Foreman, loquacious, colorful, 6-foot-4 criminal attorney of international reputation, replaced Arthur Hanes, dapper former mayor of Birmingham, Ala., whom Ray fired abruptly Sunday night.

Quoted on Plot

Ray, 40, was to go on trial today in Shelby County criminal court on charges that he killed King with a rifle shot last April 4 when King was here to aid the city's striking garbage collectors.

In the current issue of Look magazine, published Monday, Ray is quoted as saying he unknowingly became involved in "some sort of plot to kill King" eight months before the slaying.

Ray's capture June 8 climaxed a record FBI manhunt that began when King, Nobel Peace Prize winner and leading proponent of nonviolence in the civil rights struggle, was shot to death on the balcony of the Lorraine Motel in downtown Memphis.

The FBI claimed the fatal bullet was fired by Ray from a cheap lodging house about 200 feet away. Ray denied the slaying.

In the Look article, author William Bradford Huie says Ray wrote from his Memphis jail cell: "I suppose I became involved in some sort of plot to kill King when I first took those packages into the United States from Canada... but nobody told me anything about any planned murder of King or anyone else."

The article quotes Ray as writing that he met a man named Raoul while a fugitive in Canada in August 1967. Ray, Huie wrote, said Raoul offered him money, a car and "travel papers" if he would establish himself in Birmingham and make himself "available."

Two Auto Trips

Before leaving for Birmingham, Ray made two auto trips across the border at Detroit with "packages" Raoul had concealed in his old car, Huie wrote. Ray then went to Birmingham and made other trips for Raoul, including the Mexican border, the article said.

Ray wrote that Raoul told him, "We had one more job to do and we'd do it in about two or three months." Ray said he was promised "travel papers" and $12,000. When he asked what the job was, Ray said he was told "not to worry about it and not to ask questions."

Ray was in Los Angeles, Huie wrote, when he "received by mail on March 15 the directive he had been expecting. He was wanted in Selma and Birmingham, Ala., where King was recruiting support for his Poor People's march on Washington."

Huie said Ray registered in a motel in Selma on March 22 and went to Atlanta the next day. He quoted a news dispatch that said King had gone to Atlanta on March 21 after a swing through Alabama. King was slain in Memphis two weeks later.

N.Y. Sanit Men Face New Piles

NEW YORK (AP) — Sanitationmen faced new piles of refuse today after their Veterans Day holiday compounded the lag in collections caused by the strike of incinerator firemen.

Although an overtime force of 2,000 sanitationmen worked Sunday, much of their effort was erased by the holiday Monday.

Some of the uncollected piles of garbage remained from Election Day, which sanitationmen had off.

Four hundred incinerator stokers went out on strike Wednesday, shutting down the city's 11 public incinerators. The strike forced refuse truck operators to make longer, time-consuming runs to dumps in land-fill areas.

Fewer than 1000 of the 14,000 department employees were on duty Monday to clean up at parade sites.

The stokers say they make less money than private industry employees with similar jobs. They now receive $3.79 an hour and are demanding between $5.50 and $6.00 an hour. Leaders of their union, Local 704, Public Service Institutional Employees, have labeled the stokers' strike unauthorized.

Commandos Killed

SEOUL (UPI)—South Korean troops and police killed eight more members of a 30-man North Korean commando force that landed on South Korea's east coast Nov. 2, military spokesmen said today.

It brought to 23 the number of Communists of the commando squad killed. The military spokesmen said the remaining eight were trapped in an area 100 miles east of Seoul.

Dental Costs To Be Covered By Blue Cross

NEW YORK (AP) — Blue Cross and Blue Shield in New York State will begin a program to provide prepayment of most dental costs, it was announced Monday.

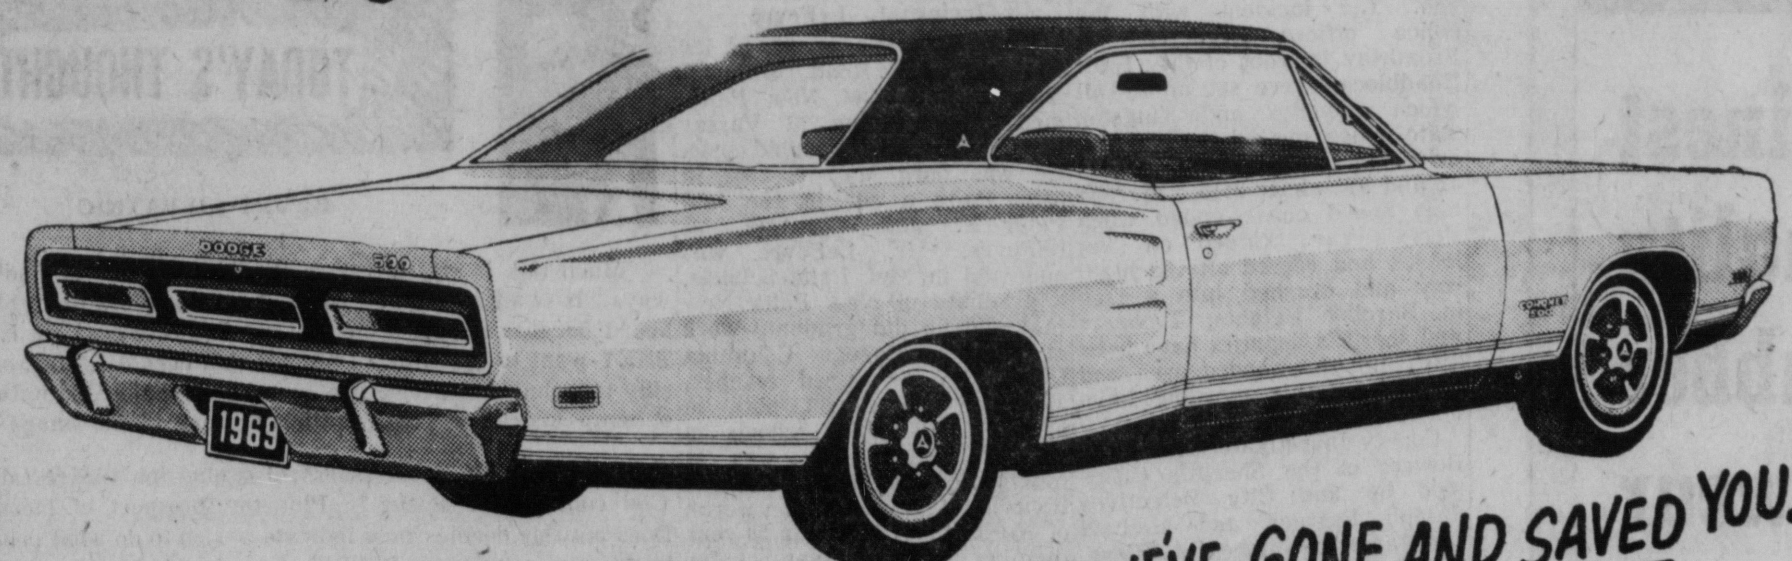

The program will be offered initially to a limited number of groups of 50 or more persons. A spokesman for Associated Hospital Service (Blue Cross) said that the cost to subscribers had not yet been determined, but that an "educated guess" would be made to allow the program to begin.

The program would include payment for diagnoses, treatment and surgery. Riders would be available to cover false teeth and bridge work, treatment of tissues supporting the teeth and straightening," the announcement said.

It also said the program had been approved by the Dental Society of the State of New York.

Pursue Leads in Theft Of 300-Pound Safe

State Police Bureau of Criminal Investigation officers from the area stations today pursued leads in hopes of solving a $26,000 safe burglary at the Pioneer Country Club in Greenfield Park near Ellenville.

Troopers said the contents of the safe consisted of jewelry and cash estimated at more than $6,000 and stocks and bonds listed in value at approximately $20,000.

The theft occurred sometime between Friday and Sunday morning at 7:45 when the safe was discovered missing. Search of the area was immediately launched by BCI officers from Ellenville and other stations and yesterday the safe was found by Troopers Francis H. Steiner and Douglas H. Dymond in a wooded section about one-mile off the main highway.

According to troopers, the safe weighed approximately 300 pounds. It was taken from the country club office, and when found the troopers discovered it had been ripped open, apparently with chisels and bars.

The contents of the safe had been taken by the thieves. Authorities said the jewelry, cash and stocks and bonds belonged to the Gartenberg family, owners and operators of the country club.

High Falls Man to Head Governors for WHITA

Michael Antonelli of High Falls was named chairman of the Board of Governors of WHITA (We've Had It Taxpayer's Association) at an organizational meeting held last night at the Gov. Clinton Hotel.

The remainder of the slate includes: Albert Sonnenberg, advertising businessman of Kingston, vice chairman; H. Van Wyck Darrow, Kingston banker, treasurer and Mrs. Julia Garvin of New Paltz, secretary.

Two committees were also named as follows: By-laws and Rules, Floyd LaForge, Kingston fuel oil dealer, chairman; Fred Freitag, retired assessor from Ontario, Sonnenberg, Antonelli, Mrs. Colleen Forestire, Stone Ridge legal secretary and Mrs. Emma Aprea, Kingston housewife.

A committee to study the Ulster County budget and attend the public hearing Tuesday, Nov. 19 was also named as follows: Robert Gardner, Saugerties auditor, chairman.

Light Slate For Council

Kingston Common Council will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. for its November session and is expected to deal with a comparatively light agenda.

Tops on the list is the canvassing of the vote from last Tuesday's election. The alderman are also expected to approve a $35,100 federal grant for spot demolition in various parts of the city.

Canal Street will be officially abandoned by the city and later put up for a tax sale.

It is also expected that a five-year tenure will be approved for members of the Public Works Department.

Clean Air Group Meets Thursday

The Ulster County Citizens' Committee for Clean Air is taking its problems before the Ulster County Legislature Thursday night.

The group is scheduled to appear at the 8 p. m. session in the County Office Building. Slides showing local industrial air pollution sources and reports concerning complaints will be presented to the county legislators for regulatory action on a county level.

Thomas Shay Sr. Dies, Former Lloyd Assessor

Thomas J. Shay Sr., 97, of New Paltz Road, Highland, former assessor for the Town of Lloyd, died at St. Francis Hospital, Poughkeepsie, Monday after a short illness.

Since 1959, Mr. Shay had made his home with his son, Thomas Shay Jr., supervisor of the Town of Lloyd.

Mr. Shay was assessor for the Town of Lloyd from 1924 to 1967 and had served 20 years as a trustee of the Clintondale Fire Company.

He was a 60-year charter member of the Clintondale Grange and an honorary life member of the Knights of Columbus of Poughkeepsie. Mr. Shay was a parishioner at St. Joseph's Church, New Paltz for 67 years and was a member of the Holy Name Society.

Born in the Town of Plattekill Aug. 1, 1871, a son of John and Anna Katy Shay, he attended 10 Stone Meadow School, Tuckers Corners, Highland.

He was married to the former Anna Harty in 1896 at Milton. She died on June 2, 1959. Prior to his retirement, Mr. Shay operated dairy and fruit farms in Marlboro, Milton and the Town of Lloyd, residing in Clintondale for 39 years.

Surviving in addition to his son Thomas Jr., are a daughter, Mrs. James (Helen) Crotty of Monroe; another son John of Clintondale; two granddaughters, Mrs. David A. (Elizabeth) Russo of Mt. Rainier, Md., and Miss Kathleen Shay, a teacher in Wappingers Central School; a great-granddaughter, Kathleen A. Russo of Mt. Rainier, Md.

Funeral will be held at the home of his son on New Paltz Road, Highland, Wednesday 9:15 a. m. thence to St. Joseph's Church, New Paltz where at 10 a. m. a Mass requiem will be offered for the repose of his soul. Burial will be in St. Charles Cemetery, Gardiner. Friends may call at the residence today 7 to 9 p. m. Rosary will be recited at 8 o'clock.

Perry Friend Charged in Theft At Trailer Home

The search for Douglas Perry, 19, who reportedly is absent without leave from the Marine Corps, and was last seen entering a wooded area in the Village of Saugerties early Monday led to the arrest of a youth who police described as an accomplice of Perry's in an Oct. 21 burglary.

A car reportedly operated by Perry struck Kingston Patrolman Gerald Tierney, who had stopped the vehicle to check the operator at 1:17 a. m. He is the same subject who figured in a massive manhunt in Uptown Kingston before he was taken into custody four months ago. The incident with the police officer occurred on Broadway in front of City Hall. Roadblocks were set up by all police agencies and Kingston state police spotted the car and driver in the vicinity of Routes 32 and 9W about 2:15 a. m. The high speed chase ended when Perry's car skidded on wet leaves and veered off the highway and crashed into a tree in Barclay Heights. Troopers and sheriff's deputies have been searching the wooded area and as late as this morning have not found the fleeing Marine.

County Investigator Harold T. Bowers of the Sheriff's Office said he and City Detectives Joseph Ferrara and Michael Levy arrested Michael A. Blass, 16 of Mt. Marion, who they described as an accomplice of Perry in an Oct. 21 burglary of the trailer home of City Detective Charles McCullough on Dughill Road, Town of Hurley.

Blass was charged with third degree burglary and arraigned yesterday afternoon before Town of Ulster Justice Sherwood Davis. The Ulster justice committed Blass to county jail in lieu of $1,000 bail, pending a hearing on Friday.

Bowers said a radio, hunting knife, plaid jacket, food and other hunting clothing with an estimated value of $295 was missing from the trailer. Blass was arrested at his home in Mt. Marion.

YELOVICH — Stana at Cementon, N. Y. on Nov. 10, 1968, wife of the late Christopher Yelovich, mother of Mrs. Mildred Boice, Mrs. Edward (Eva) Briody and Herbert Yelovich, sister of Mrs. Charles (Margaret) Vager, 2 grandchildren and several nieces and nephews also survive.

Funeral will be held from the M. A. Galletta Funeral Home 25 Ulster Avenue, Saugerties, Wednesday, Nov. 13, 1968 at 9:15 a. m. thence to St. Mary's Church, Cementon, N. Y. at 10 a. m. where a high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of her soul. Interment in St. Patrick's Cemetery, Catskill, N. Y. Friends may call at the funeral home Monday and Tuesday from 2 to 5 and 7 to 9 p. m.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

By JIM GILPATRIC

Much talk is still heard on the uncertainties of God and His ways. It is all so needless. Is not this needless blab, blab, blab heard because people prefer to see God—NOT as He is—but as THEY want to see Him? Does not this needless, and sometimes silly talk, indicate people are trying to re-make God in the image of man—instead of concentrating on man in the image of God?

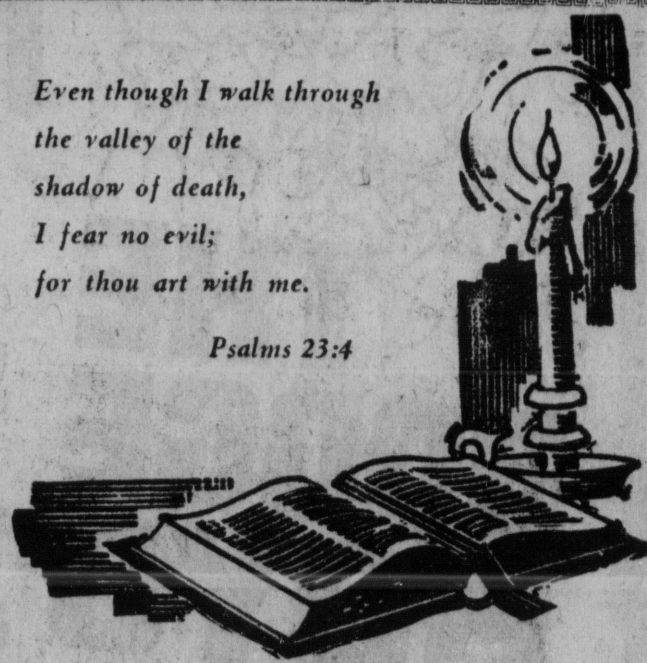

Does not this needlessness also question the certainty that God controls all destiny? Plus the prospect of eternal life? Does not this needlessness indicate a wish to do what people want to do—and want to do it NOW—and eternal life can wait? Does not this needlessness help explain why people say God's ways—His rules—are breaking down when in fact it is man's way that is at fault?

We think these questions are worth thinking about. Don't you?

The Men from Merrill Lynch look at LEISURE... investment opportunities in this $150-billion market

Send for your forum tickets today

Americans today spend one-third of their time, and a good share of their money, on leisure pursuits—from tennis to TV watching, from camping to concerts, from sewing to swimming. And the prognosis is that, in the future, they'll have even more free time for recreation. Plus more money to spend on it.

Leisure has already created a whole new area of opportunity for investors, an area that shows every promise of expanding in the future.

If you would like to hear a Merrill Lynch Account Executive discuss the industries that now produce leisure goods and services—and get specific information on which stocks our Research Department thinks are attractive within them—come to our

LEISURE INDUSTRIES FORUM

You'll find out about:

- How America's gradual shift from Puritanical standards to self-indulgence has directly affected the stock market.
- The ever expanding do-it-yourself market and what it could mean to your investment portfolio.
- The enormous annual expenditure for boats, games and musical instruments—and which securities in these areas seem particularly favorable for growth.
- The $7-billion a year that goes for home entertaining, and how it has caused increasing diversification on the part of many companies and increasing opportunities for investors.

Police Probe Two Burglaries

Kingston detectives today were pressing investigation of two weekend burglaries that netted intruders the contents of several vending machines.

A police official said Bonnie's Restaurant at 589 Broadway, was entered through a back door. A juke box, pool table, coin box and cigaret vending machine were found smashed open when the place was opened for business on Monday.

The other break-in occurred at the Blue Gardiner Club on East Strand. That establishment was entered through a window of the men's wash room. Rifled of the contents were a bowling machine and a juke box. An undetermined amount of cash also was taken.

Joint Meeting In Rosendale Is Postponed

The joint informational meeting of the Town and Village of Rosendale Planning Boards with consultants, Brown and Anthony has been postponed.

Originally, scheduled for tonight at 7 at the Tillson Firehouse, the meeting has been postponed until Tuesday, Nov. 26 at 7 at the same place, according to Gerard DeFelice, supervisor.

Saugerties HS Open House Rescheduled

The Saugerties Senior High School open house, originally scheduled for tonight has been postponed due to inclement weather, according to announcement made this morning by Dr. George Hamaty, principal.

The event has been rescheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 20 at 7:30 p.m. Open House is being held in conjunction with American Education Week activities.

Build your future with Merrill Lynch as an account executive in Poughkeepsie

You've had some business experience —preferably (but not necessarily) in sales. Now you want to move into work that offers more satisfactions, more chance to help people, more responsibility, and greater income potential.

As an account executive at Merrill Lynch, your satisfactions can come from knowing that you help people invest sensibly. And you'll advance professionally—in income too—proportionate to your own efforts. Our average account executive ranks in the top 1% of Americans in earnings after five years of selling securities, and his income potential is virtually unlimited.

You'll need plenty of ambition, initiative, and intelligence. If you qualify, you'll need no previous brokerage experience; we'll train you. And pay you during the training period.

If this sounds interesting, let us hear from you, including details of your school and work background and any outside interests or activities. Send a letter or resume, in confidence, to

Second Session Nov. 21st Of Area Development Plan

A second meeting of the Mid-Hudson Rural Development Project, which includes Ulster, Greene, Orange and Sullivan Counties in a pilot program for all phases of community development will be held Thursday, Nov. 21 at 8 p.m. in the surrogate's courtroom, third floor of the county office building, Main and Fair Streets.

The four-county area has been selected by the Department of Agriculture and will involve concerned local leaders and citizens from all walks of life in development of the rural sectors of the project area.

The program will demonstrate how the services available from federal, state and local agencies can be used by the people to help in solving development problems.

Overall responsibility for the program rests with the Farmers Home Administration, and agency of the Department of Agriculture.

The project has 11 objectives as follows:

11 Objectives

To provide decent and safe housing for all citizens; to develop and expand community facilities for pure water, waste disposal and community activity centers; to maintain family-type and commercial farms at a profit on lands suitable for this purpose; to alleviate poverty by implementing programs available to help low-income citizens; to encourage and develop a favorable climate to attract the type of small industries that will employ the local labor force; to develop forestry enterprises for economic and multi-use benefits; to train and careers within the area and also develop jobs to supplement seasonal employment; initiation of programs to conserve and develop natural resources; development of public and private recreational facilities; to cooperate with planning boards and other planning groups to learn of their needs and problems, and to create a greater awareness of Technical Action Panel activities and objectives and accomplishments of the Mid-Hudson Rural Development Project.

The project area is predominantly rural and heavily wooded with a population of about 434,000 for the four counties. Projections of the population for 1970 and 1980 indicate that the area will continue to grow at a more rapid pace than the entire state. By 1980 the population is expected to be 600,000.

Industry and businesses that use most of the labor pool include dairying, truck farming, fruit raising, egg production and other agricultural services; manufacturing of cement, wearing apparel, textiles, data processing and electronic equipment and the operation of a wide variety of recreational facilities.

The economy of the area is described as dynamic, but many of the area's resources are not being fully utilized or developed, and many problems exist.

One of these is the lagging of incomes behind the rest of the state. Another is the need for adequate housing to meet the expected increase in population. Tied to this is financial support and labor for construction. In addition, in the four county area, there are reportedly some 24,000 homes in need of repair and 6,300 units unfit for human habitation.

Farm families in the area need assistance in acquiring the resources to assure an adequate living.

Water Supply a Problem

The lack of water supply is also a problem. Less than half of the homes in the area receive their water supply from a community water system. The others use their own wells or have no water supply. The demands for more water will increase with the expanding population. There are also untapped opportunities for the development of forest products.

Training is required by much of the available labor supply to meet the needs of today's labor market. The problem is unemployment and under-employment.

More recreational facilities are needed because of the closeness of the area to metropolitan New York. Modernization of collection and treatment of sewage is also a crying need. Only one-third of the population has public waste disposal systems available. This also requires expansion to meet the growing population. Highway improvement is also needed in the area.

The formation of a Mid-Hudson Rural Development Advisory committee will include in four-county group composed of citizens from each of the four counties. In periodic sessions they will identify the problems and development potentials and make recommendations.

In conjunction with this county development committees will be formed for each county to gather factual information.

Recognize Need for Law Study

JOSEPH TORRACA

Members of a newly appointed Police Science Advisory Council have agreed that there is a need for Ulster County Community College to offer a police science and correction programs.

The council members, who met recently at the college, said they felt it was imperative to upgrade the educational training for persons engaged in law enforcement and correction work.

Speaking to the council members was James D. Stinchcomb, a specialist in public service for the American Association of Junior Colleges.

Stinchcomb, formerly a member of the staff of the International Association of Police Chiefs, said he felt a law enforcement program should be built for the future, not the past.

Future of Field

He said law enforcement has been falling away in competition for personnel with other fields and pointed out that this field in the future will have to offer incentives for personnel taking courses in higher education.

Stinchcomb informed the council of a federal program for tuition grants and loans for police and correction personnel taking college courses.

Captain John McCarthy, of the State Police, said seven per cent of the troopers in the state now are taking courses at community colleges, including Ulster County Community College.

The captain said he plans to poll troopers in Troop F, which includes Ulster, Greene, Sullivan, Orange and Rockland, to determine how many might be interested in enrolling in a police science program if it should be offered by UCCC.

Local Approval

Chief Francis Fagan, of the Kingston Police Department, said 32 of the 56 men on his force had indicated an interest in enrolling in a police science program at the community college.

Ellenville Police Chief Abraham Rand said three of his policemen presently are enrolled on evening courses offered by UCCC, and added that others on the department had indicated an interest in enrolling in a police science curriculum.

Ulster County District Attorney Joseph Torraca said he also felt there is a need for the college to offer non-credit in-service training courses for constables in Ulster County.

Robert Kuhlmann, assistant director of the Woodbourne Narcotics Rehabilitation Center, said he thought it would be valuable to have a two-year degree program that would offer courses for correction personnel. He added that there are correction officers at his institution who would be interested in such a program.

Correction Personnel

Also pointing out the need to provide high education opportunities for correction personnel were Warden Charles McKendrick of Wallkill Prison, and Warden Maurice Blow, of the Catskill Reformatory at Napanoch.

Speaking to the council members was Dr. George B. Erbstein, president of the college, who noted requests that had been received from people in the community for a law enforcement program at the community college.

Dr. Erbstein said he hoped the council would continue to be a "working group" and would provide the college with help in planning courses, obtaining instructors, and evaluating the program if it should be offered by UCCC. He said the initial council meeting was to help in identifying needs for such programs.

Deadly Gold Rules

POSTMASTER NEWKIRK (L) WITH SAMPLE OF YULE MAIL DELUGE.

PO Confident of Good Yule Job

By SHANE CROSBY

A nine-million-piece avalanche of holiday mail is expected to descend upon the Kingston Post Office between Dec. 3 and 29, according to Postmaster Oscar V. Newkirk.

That's a lot of stamp licking in anybody's book, but he is confident that the Post Office can take care of the deluge as long as that old bug-a-boo — snow — doesn't get in the way.

Newkirk expressed assurance that things would go smoothly over the holiday period with the cooperation of the public, who kept a 8.97-million piece flood from getting out of hand last year.

The public apparently took to heart what the Post Office had to say about shopping early and mailing early and he said they seemed to follow the suggested deadlines for the mailing of packages.

Over the years, he said, post offices have been able to take care of the Christmas rush with less and less strain on men and equipment.

In 1956, he noted, the Kingston Post Office hired 80 part-time workers for the Christmas season. That figure has steadily gone down to a low of 23 for last season. This year they expect that no part-time help will be needed.

While economic cutbacks have been called for by postal officials in Washington, Newkirk noted that regular employees, placed on limited overtime, are able to handle the extra load of mail. This, despite the fact that the amount of mail has gone up some 2 per cent a year in the Kingston area.

He said this was a "normal growth" figure for the area serviced by the 94 post offices under his control.

Although the post office is not expected to hire the extra part-time help, Newkirk said applications would be accepted.

Snow is the major problem that post offices face at Christmas time, he said. Listed as an "unknown quantity" by the postmaster, he said it could produce a "tremendous hindrance" to handling the delivery plans.

Even if the snow were to keep well away from the City of Kingston, he said transportation of mail to the city could backlog work for as long as the supply roads are closed.

He said that city delivery and rural routes would also be slowed down by snow and accompanying ice conditions.

Last year the post office ran a "smooth movement of mail," he said.

He congratulated the public for the attention to post office suggestions last year and offered several pointers to Christmas card and package senders.

—Mail early and shop early, also buy stamps early. "I can look out in the lobby and see people coming in day after day to pick up mail, then wait until the last minute to buy stamps when they have to stand in line."

—Don't put addresses on more than one side of a package. "The mail handler may look at the side without the postage and send it back."

—Put extra addresses on inner wrappings of packages so officials can deliver your bundle even though the outer wrapper has come off.

—Put a 6-cent stamp on all Christmas cards that are in envelopes.

—Use Zip Codes.

The Crises in New York City Key to Area Population Gain

New York City's recurring crises in education, services, transportation, and other areas of community life were singled out recently as factors in the Mid-Hudson region's accelerating population growth.

F. Roy Madgwick, associate director of Mid-Hudson Pattern for Progress, Inc., the seven-county citizens regional planning, research, and development corporation, explained further that each new population projection for the area is generally higher than its predecessor.

Madgwick said that the "total figure is now expected to reach 1.4 million around 1985 — an increase of several hundred thousand over earlier estimates."

Madgwick, who was one of the speakers at the New York State Area 10 Business and Office Education Fall Conference in Poughkeepsie, quoted from projections supplied by the State Office of Planning Coordination and other agencies.

He spoke on "Planning for the future" of the Mid-Hudson Valley," at the one day event at Central Hudson auditorium.

The event drew business department supervisors, coordinators, and teachers from schools in Dutchess, Orange, Sullivan and Ulster Counties.

According to Madgwick, the New York Metropolitan area, which includes five of the seven Mid-Hudson counties, is expected to add five million persons by 1985, moving from a total of about 20 million to about 25 million.

The Albany capital district, which affects Greene and Columbia Counties, also is expected to add another 200,000 persons by 1985, moving to a new total of 700,000 persons.

With new and improved highway accessibility in the region, especially Interstate Route 84, expected to be completed about 1970, the Mid Hudson will be experiencing a greater impact from the growth in the metropolitan area to the south, said Madgwick.

"These growth pressures are already strong," he added, indicating the increasing amount of agricultural land being taken out of production and held for speculation, the R.H. Macy and Company regional shopping center being planned for Fishkill, the new industry springing up along Interstate Route 84, and the shortages in adequate housing.

Madgwick said that the region's people should begin to work now to insure that a good quality of living is retained in the area — the same quality that is now making the region attractive to New York City residents.

"Ten or perhaps even five years may be too late," he noted.

Mental Health Makes Holiday Card Appeal

The Ulster County Association for Mental Health is making its annual request for new greeting cards with stamped envelopes, Hanukkah, Christmas and New Year cards are collected by the Association for use of some of the patients at Middletown State Hospital. They will be distributed by the staff to patients who do not have visitors to bring cards in for them, or who do not have the money to arrange for their purchase.

The writing and sending of greeting cards by patients who are sometimes not well enough to write a letter can be a tremendous morale booster and bring renewed hope to the recipient of the card and is excellent therapy for the patient.

In past years some junior Girl Scout Troops in the area have contributed hand-made cards for this project, and a number of civic groups and clubs have donated cards.

Cards should reach the Association office by Nov. 23 if possible, or may be sent direct to the Supervisor of Volunteer Services, Middletown State Hospital, Middletown, N.Y. 10940. Ulster County Association for Mental Health, which is a Community Chest Agency, is at 27 East O'Reilly Street, Kingston, N.Y. 12401.

The office is open Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Methods Used for Morhouse Conviction Upheld by Court

NEW YORK (AP) — The eavesdropping methods used to obtain a 1966 bribery conviction against former Republican State Chairman L. Judson Morhouse were upheld Monday in State Supreme Court.

Justice Abraham J. Gellinoff held in a special 47-page report that incriminating information obtained by the district attorney's office through wiretaps and hidden microphones was not "tainted" and therefore was admissible.

His findings now go to the state's highest tribunal Court of Appeals, which ordered a hearing last December after affirming Morhouse's conviction.

A two to three year jail sentence had been imposed on Morhouse, now free pending a final determination of the constitutional issue of wiretapping.

Described at his trial before Justice Gellinoff as the "Mr. Big" of the New York Republican party, Morhouse was found guilty on May 20, 1966, on two felony counts of bribing Martin C. Epstein, the chairman of the State Liquor Authority. The bribe was said to be for a liquor license for the Playboy Club in New York.

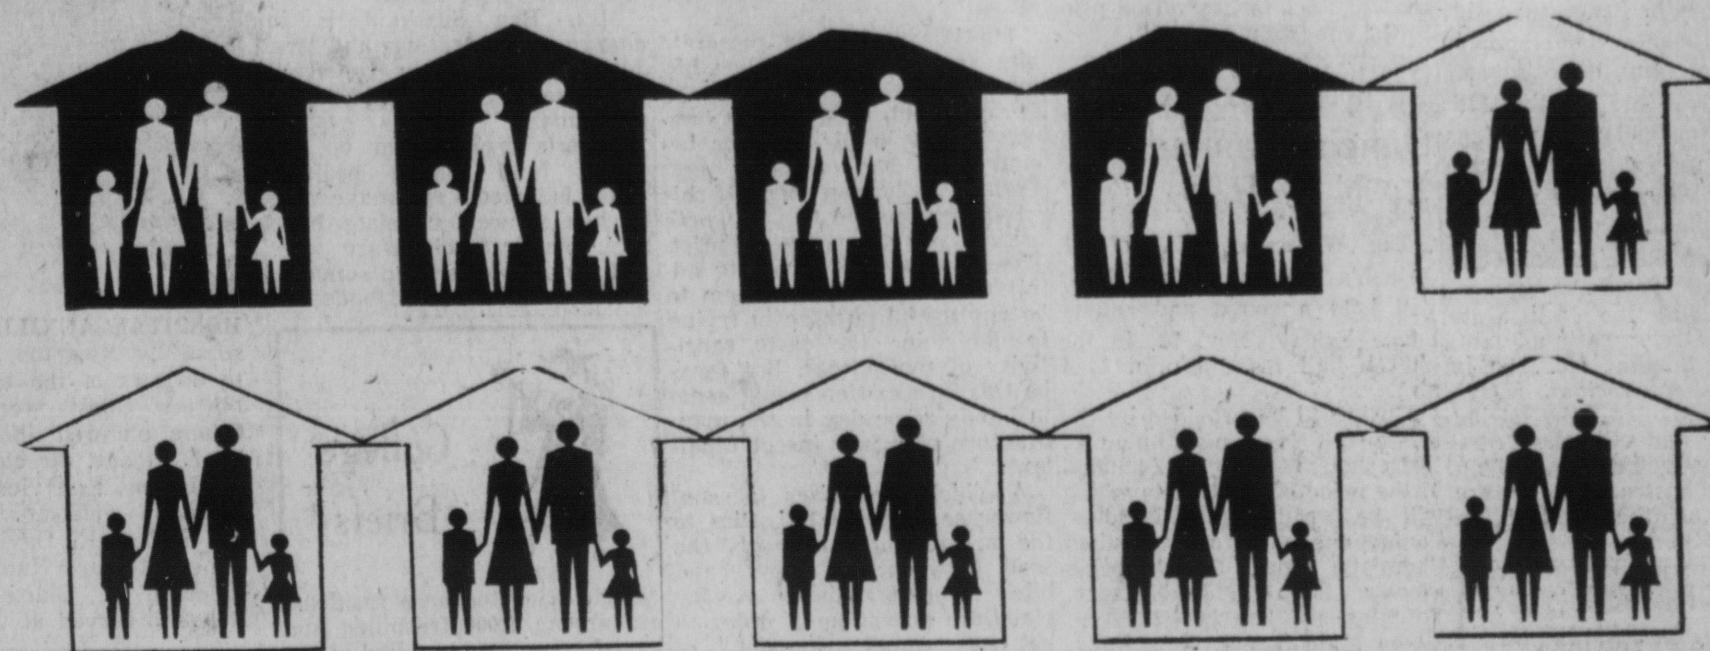

The hearing, which produced more than 1,000 pages of testimony, was considered highly unusual because the state's highest court, after upholding a conviction, asked the lower court judge to consider constitutional problems that had been raised between the time of the conviction and an appeal in a related case by the United States Supreme Court.

In the related case, the U.S. Supreme Court reversed the conviction of Ralph Berger, who had been found guilty in New York State Court of being the "fixer" in the Playboy scandal. It ruled that court-allowed eavesdropping by the police was unconstitutional.

By DOROTHY VAN DOREN

The scientists are always busy, discovering new foods for us to eat, new clothes for us to wear, new materials out of which to make houses, and new weapons to blow us up.

Much of this scientific activity, with the exception of the last, is beneficial. The new foods may not be more palatable than the old but they keep longer and except for inveterate cooks who like to spend time cooking they take much less time to prepare. The new fabrics are easier to wash and much easier to iron—if they need ironing at all—and if they do not last as long as the silk and linen and wool of another day they at least outlast the fashion. There was a time when a woolen garment was handed down from mother to daughter to grandchild; it wasn't washed between generations either. Who would like to be thus clothed today?

In other words, hurrah for science. Yet a recent newspaper item with a byline of United Press International is perhaps worth noting: "Scientists at the University of Wyoming have spent $75,000 in Federal funds over the last 13 years trying to find out if mosquitoes like biting millions of victims and have not made much progress."

Ho hum. Does a mosquito bite you because he likes biting, because you are to him a tasty morsel, because you happen to get in his way, or because he has declared war against the human race? If this has never seemed to you worth asking, you are not a scientist. The scientists in Wyoming admit that there did not seem to be any useful purpose in trying to determine the taste sensitivity of mosquitoes, but maybe this information would come in handy some day in the manufacture of a new insect repellent.

A chickadee seizes a sunflower seed in his bill, flies to the nearest branch, holds the seed between his claws, and bites it open. This is a very elaborate operation in order to get a small amount of sustenance. Does the chickadee do it this way in order to sharpen his bill, to get exercise, or because he does not know where to buy bottled, hulled sunflower seeds?

Sometimes our lawn is infested with little black flies which get into one's eyes, nose, ears, and mouth. Do these little creatures want to see you better: are they interested in the structure of the human ear: are they desirous of being swallowed in a lemming-like wish to die: or are they just floating around in space, not going anywhere in particular?

I raise these questions in case the Wyoming scientists get tired of mosquitoes and wish to take up some other creature. I should still like to know just how the mosquito investigation went on. What did the mosquitoes say when asked the question. What does a mosquito ever say? Our mosquitoes all say buzz. And finally, I can think of other ways of spending $75,000 of your money and mine.

The paid-up membership dinner was the chief topic of discussion at the recent board meeting of Sisterhood of Congregation Agudas Achim which was held at the home of Mrs. Jack Blinder. The dinner has been planned for Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in the vestry hall of the Synagogue at 24 West Union Street, Kingston.

Mrs. Harry Friedman is chairman of the menu committee. Mrs. Saul Schecter has arranged a program which will include the "Agudas Achim Players." New members will be inducted and past presidents will be honored. Ceremonies and presentations will be conducted by Mrs. Irving Kreppel, vice president of membership, who should be contacted by prospective members who wish to attend. Additional plans for the evening include Mrs. Irving Rudolph's fund raising project, plastic kitchenware, which will be displayed and available for special orders. Mrs. Herman Schneider will sell theatre books and Mah Jongg cards.

Mrs. Ben Susskind is in charge of reservations and Mrs. Joel Pollack may be contacted by those having transportation problems.

Reports were given on the recent fund raising projects which included a rummage sale, kitchen shower, cakeless bake sale, plastic kitchenware sale, and a mini-bazaar and supper. Appreciation was extended to

Look Here Homemaker

Eating out may become the great American pastime if present trends continue, says Louise Kakargo Breitling, Extension Home Economist. The food service industry (that which serves ready-to-eat food) is huge and rapidly growing. Those restaurant dinner checks (plus checks of similar places) add up to a whopping $22 billion annually, not including wines and other alcoholic beverages. The food service industry is a major employer of labor with nearly 3.3 million persons (including part-time workers) at work in an average week. The industry is an important outlet for the food produced on the nation's farms. About 87 per cent of all public eating places are independently owned and have no affiliation with a franchise or chain operation.

About 4 out of 5 public eating places are located in cities with the others equally divided between the suburbs and rural areas. One authority in the retail grocery field has stated that the supermarket's greatest competition in the future would be eating out. He stated that from 28 to 30 per cent of the total amount of meat consumed is eaten away from home, and that this share will rise to 35 per cent by 1972.

The new poultry inspection measure, known as the Wholesome Poultry Products Inspection Act of 1968, has been signed by President Johnson. The new law for poultry follows the pattern of the Wholesome Meat Act which became law last year. The new poultry inspection act will raise the quality of inspection within the states to a level where it will meet the Federal standards of wholesomeness.

States will have about two years to raise their standards for intrastate poultry inspection. Failure to measure up to Federal standards by a state could mean a take over by the U.S. Department of Agriculture of intrastate inspection. Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman has already taken steps to implement the new law.

AT THE MARKETS

MEATS—Pork production is currently running ahead of last year's pace. Hog slaughter is also increasing seasonally and is at the peak for the year. Production during November will be about the same as a year earlier. Beef output has been from 5 to 10 per cent greater than a year ago, and this margin is likely to continue in the weeks to come. Veal and lamb production will remain at comparatively low levels.

POULTRY PRODUCTS—Egg production and receipts at markets continue to decline, a reflection of curtailed laying flocks. Egg prices are rising.

Senior Seminar Held

On Wednesday, Oct. 23, the second session of the 1968-1969 Senior Seminar Program was held at the State University College at New Paltz. The evening's program—"The World of the Guitar: Classical, Flamenco, and Folk"—featured Jim Gold. Mr. Gold is a native of New York City. After graduating from the High School of Music and Art, he continued his studies at the Eastman School of Music and the University of Chicago. In addition, Mr. Gold spent a year in France studying at the University of Aix-en-Provence and traveling through Europe learning the folk music of France, Italy, and Spain.

In his program, Mr. Gold included the works of such fine composers as Bach, Scarlatti, and Villa-Lobos; as well as selections of flamenco music, folk songs from around the world, humorous original songs, and stories illustrated by unique sound effects on the guitar. Through this exciting and varied program, the students were able to share Jim Gold's view of life.

The Senior Seminar is a joint project of the Secondary Principals' Council of the Ulster County Board of Cooperative Educational Services and the State University College at New Paltz. This year, plans have been made for two field trips in addition to the eleven sessions which are being held at the college. Arrangements have been made for a field trip to the Jay Skidmore Sanctuary in Pine Plains. Here the students will explore a sanctuary in the making. A trip will also be taken to the Moreno Academy in Beacon. Dr. Moreno, president of the World Center for Psychodrama will conduct a session in Psychodrama, Role Playing, and Human Relations.

TAGGING THE BABY — Mrs. H. Van Wyck Darrow Jr., of Hurley, demonstrates how she tagged baby daughter Emily (age 4) when the family went abroad last summer and to California. The idea of having the youngster wear a "trip tag" bearing all the essential information was the subject of an article written by Mrs. Darrow for the November issue of the Ladies Home Journal. Mrs. Darrow, a former Freeman Society Editor, had her article published in the column "If It Were My Child." In it she writes: "... I always pin a luggage tag on her coat or sweater and insert a card with her name, our name and our immediate destination — just in case she ever gets lost. The cards easily slip in and out of the tag and the extra time it takes to write each new one is well worth the effort." A marvelous idea for other vacationing families with small tots. KHS Class of 1938 Has Scheduled Anniversary Dinner

The Kingston High School graduating class of 1938 will celebrate its 30th anniversary at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Saturday, Nov. 23. Cocktail hour will be from 6:30 to 7:30 p. m. and dinner will be served at 8 p. m. Dancing will take place after the dinner with music provided by Johnny Kanpp's Band. As reservations are limited it is important they be made as quickly as possible with James Geary, 47 West O'Reilly Street, or Kathy Osterhoudt, 174 Millers Lane, Kingston.

If any member of the class has not received an invitation by mail, he is asked to contact either member of the planning committee.

A meeting of the planning committee will be held on Wednesday evening at 8 p. m. at the home of Betty Gill Schick, 263 Albany Avenue. Any member of the graduating class is welcome to attend this meeting and assist with final arrangements for the anniversary.

22nd Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Katatsky of 89 Jervis Avenue, Kingston, celebrated their 22nd wedding anniversary at a dinner party at the Concord Hotel, Kiamogeba Lake. They were accompanied by friends from Kingston.

Mrs. Katatsky is the former Harriet Levine. The couple was married at the Levine home in this city on November 3, 1946. They are the parents of two daughters, Marilyn and Eileen. Mr. Katatsky is employed by Wood Walker Company, Kingston.

TURNOVERS

Mexican turnover pastries — big "empanadas" or small "compaditas" — are often filled with a mixture of chopped meat, aromatic vegetables, eggs perhaps, fruits, sometimes nuts, and hot, spicy seasonings. Included is sugar, only a little but enough to bring out and blend the hearty ingredient flavors of these hardly sweet holiday snacks.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK PARLOW SR. of 62 Ponckhockie Street, Kingston, celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary Sunday Oct. 27, at an open house at Ponckhockie Congregational Church Fellowship Hall. Mr. and Mrs. Parlow have resided at Ponckhockie all their lives and are charter members of Congregational Church. They have four children, Mrs. Joseph Nerone Sr., Frank William Parlow Jr., Mrs. John Karol, all of Kingston; and Mrs. Roy E. Mick of Vermont. They also have 11 grandchildren and nine great grandchildren. Mr. Parlow is a retired fireman on the Mary Powell dayboat and is now a self-employed gardener and handyman. Approximately 125 guests attended the open house.

CHALK ONE FOR IRELAND — The entry from Ireland, Sir Ivor (6) leads the pack across the finish line to win the 17th running of the Washington, D. C. International at Laurel Race Course in Maryland. Placing second is Czar

Alexander (4) of the U. S. and in the third spot is Fort Marcy (8) also of the U. S. In fourth position is France's Carmarthen (2). (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Sir Ivor by Three-Quarter Length Irish Horse Wins It

By RAY AYRES
UPI Sports Writer

LAUREL, Md. (UPI)—Sir Ivor, carrying the colors of Ireland where he was trained and the hopes of Kentucky where he was born, came through with a smashing victory Monday in the 17th running of the $150,000 added Washington, D.C. International at Laurel. Favored in the field of eight thoroughbreds representing five countries, Sir Ivor turned a hopeless situation into a moment of triumph with a powerful charge through the stretch that gave Ireland its first victory in the global classic.

It gave jockey Lester Piggott, England's champion rider, his first victory after five unsuccessful attempts to win the 1 1/2-mile event over Laurel's turf course.

For a few brief moments the race appeared to be a battle between the American forces with Fort Marcy, the 1967 winner, and Czar Alexander battling head and head around the final turn and into the stretch.

But suddenly Sir Ivor, who

Moves Off Rail

To find racing room, Piggott then had to move the colt off the rail. Sir Ivor momentarily was blocked behind Czar Alexander. Fort Marcy and Carmarthen drifted a little wide. Piggott went to the whip. Sir Ivor burst through the opening and the race was over.

Czar Alexander nosed out Fort Marcy for second and Carmarthen hung on for fourth.

Then came La Lagune, a French filly who threatened at the start of the stretch but faded; Petrone of France, who raced near the front in the early stages but came up empty.

Agincourt II of Argentina, who didn't do much running at any stage, and Takeshiba-O, who gave all he could by setting the pace for a mile and then collapsed.

The course was soft for the race and Sir Ivor's time for the 1 1/2 miles was a slow 2:27.15. Kélsé set the record of 2:23.44 when he won in 1964.

Is Worth $100,000

Victory was worth $100,000 to owner Raymond Guest. The former Ambassador to Ireland purchased Sir Ivor as a yearling for $42,000 and sent him to Vincent O'Brien in Ireland for training.

In Europe the colt won three of four races as a 2-year-old last year and four of eight races this year, including the English Derby. With the International victory to his credit, the colt now has an overall record of eight wins in 13 races and earnings of $560,123.

He was the favorite and paid $5.80, $3.40 and $2.60. Czar Alexander, who was bred in Ireland but raced in America all year, paid $3.20 and $2.40. Fort Marcy paid $2.80.

This was the end of Sir Ivor's racing career. He will be returned to Ireland, where he will stand in stud for a year. Guest then plans to return him to Kentucky for stud duty.

US Equestrians Score Victory In Horse Show

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United States Equestrian team, led by Mrs. Frank Chapot and Carol Hofmann, scored a victory Monday night at the National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden.

A small crowd of 5,000 saw the Americans gain the Nation's Cup in the first group effort of the show.

The U.S. won with 12 faults in two rounds, followed by Britain with 24, Canada with 36 and Australia with 44.

The victory enabled the United States to take a team lead with 92 points compared to Britain's 58.

Davis Cuppers Earn Safari to Australia

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — The United States Davis Cup team has earned its first trip to Australia in five years by virtue of its 4-1 triumph over India in the Interzone final.

The Yanks, hoping to regain tennis' most prestigious prize, won both singles matches Monday to complete the rout. Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., clinched the series by beating Ramanathan Krishnan, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3, and then Clark Graebner of New York outlasted Premjit Lall, 9-11, 9-7, 7-5, 6-4.

The U.S. last won the Davis Cup in 1963 when it beat the Australians three matches to two at Adelaide. The Aussies took it back the following year at Cleveland and have kept the Cup ever since.

By coincidence, this year's Challenge Round will be played at Adelaide, the site of the last U.S. Cup victory, Dec. 26-27.

The United States is expected to be a heavy favorite to complete its amazing rebound from tennis obscurity and bring the Cup back home. After losing the Cup in 1964, the Americans failed to go as far as the Challenge Round until Monday's victory, and last year suffered the shame of losing to Ecuador in a preliminary round.

Australia has lost a number of its leading players to the pros in the last year, such as Roy Emerson, Fred Stolle, John Newcombe and Tony Roche, while the only notable American loss to professionalism in that time was Dennis Ralston.

Bill Bowrey probably is the best amateur left in Australia, but he doesn't rank with Ashe and Graebner.

The U.S. also has about the best doubles team in the world in UCLA students Stan Smith and Bob Lutz, who easily won their match against the Indians here Sunday.

Ashe simply overpowered Krishnan, who gained India's only point in the series with an opening-day victory over Graebner. The American army lieutenant had seven aces and kept the Indian ace off balance.

The Graebner-Lall match turned into a three-hour-and-20-minute marathon, with Graebner getting the better of a service duel with 15 aces to only one for Lall.

Following his match, Ashe left with several other players for a tournament in England. Graebner and non-playing captain Donald Dell were scheduled to follow.

Trojans Widen Lead

NEW YORK (UPI)—Southern California, in the stretch run toward a second consecutive national championship, continues to lengthen its lead.

The Trojans, who successfully opened a rugged November schedule with a 35-17 victory over California, received 27 first place votes and 340 points today in balloting by the 35-member United Press International Board of Coaches. Ohio State was well behind in second with 296 points while the rest of the top 10 from last week was almost completely reshuffled.

Penn State replaced Kansas in third after the Jayhawks were upset by Oklahoma and dropped to seventh. Michigan climbed to No. 4 and Georgia took fifth, followed by Missouri, the new Big Eight conference leader, and Kansas.

Texas moved up to eighth, followed by upset specialist Auburn, breaking into the top 10 for the first time, and Tennessee, which plunged to 10th after its loss to Auburn Saturday night.

Notre Dame was 11th, a shade ahead of Houston, with Arkansas taking 13th and Oregon State 14th. Purdue, also upset last weekend, fell to 15th, barely nosing out Alabama.

Ohio University, unbeaten in eight games, was 17th while Yale, another unbeaten and owner of the longest winning streak among major colleges—15—and Texas Tech tied for 18th. Southern Methodist completed the top 20.

Southern California, due to meet Oregon State, UCLA and Notre Dame in its rugged November schedule, ripped apart California's highly regarded defense in scoring its seventh victory without a loss.

Ohio State, also 7-0, walloped Wisconsin 43-8 and Penn State remained unbeaten in seven games by rebounding in the second half to upend Miami (Fla.) 22-7. The victory was the Nittany Lions' 15th consecutive regular season triumph, sandwiched around a Gator Bowl tie with Florida State.

Michigan, which will meet second-ranked Ohio State for the Big Ten title and a trip to the Rose Bowl in two weeks, remained tied with the Buckeyes in the conference standings by ripping Illinois 36-0, the Wolverines' seventh victory in eight games.

Rookie Hayes Meets Old Master--Russell

BOSTON (AP) — The expected duel between rookie sensation Elvin Hayes of San Diego and Boston Player-Coach Bill Russell failed to materialize. The Celtics were just too much for the Rockets.

"I don't think it was a fair test," San Diego Coach Jack McMahon said after the Celtics romped to a 134-113 National Basketball Association victory Monday night in the first meeting of Hayes and Russell.

"This game was not determined by Russell or Hayes," McMahon added. "It was determined by the hustle of the Celtics."

The Celtics built a 69-40 lead in the first half and breezed the rest of the way.

The Philadelphia 76ers belted Seattle 127-117 as Hal Greer scored 34 points and Billy Cunningham 30 in the opener of the doubleheader at Boston Garden.

Hayes, the 6-foot-9 1/2 former Houston star who was the No. 1 choice in the NBA draft, was given a rest two minutes after Russell retired to the bench early in the third period.

Later, they took turns complimenting each other.

"He's tough," Hayes said of Russell. "You don't go in on Russell."

"He's good," Russell said. "He would have smoked me if he got the ball."

Hayes finished with 17 points, about 10 below his average, and 11 rebounds. Russell, a 13-year veteran, had eight points and 10 rebounds. Hayes was 7-for-19 from the floor, Russell 3-for-6.

John Havlicek led the Celtics with 29 points, including 16 in the first half. San Diego's Don Kojis matched Havlicek's 29 points.

In the only game on the American Basketball Association schedule the Oakland Oaks trimmed the New Orleans Buccaneers 136-127 in overtime, with 6-foot-11 Jim Eakins scoring 32 points and Rick Barry hitting for 31.

Barry's three-point play with four second remaining in regulation play tied the game 122-122 and set up the Oaks' overtime blitz.

Working Press

By CHARLES J. TIANO,
Sports Editor

Having vacationed three of the last five weeks, every other week as it were, we had an opportunity to visit the metropolitan mecca of professional football at Yankee Stadium and Shea Stadium.

If you can discount the winds off Flushing Bay that perpetually whistle through Shea's mezzanine, the two parks are two different worlds.

There are 60,000 seats for Jet football games—all totally unobstructed by columns or posts. Every seat has a clear view of the action. An ingenious system of seat rotation permits 10,000 seats to be moved electrically to positions which parallel the side lines of the football field.

All seat levels can be easily reached by escalators and elevators. Upper level seats are reached by 21 runs of escalators in seven banks as well as two elevators. Escalators have a carrying capacity of 6,000 persons per hour. Seats may also be reached by 24 wide and gradually-sloped ramps. The stadium has 45 acres of parking space.

(Did you ever get that trapped feeling in those dark, dismal Yankee Stadium tunnels?)

NOW BACK AT YANKEE STADIUM when 63,000-plus attend a game, at least 20,000 don't get a piece of the full action. The traffic jams around the Bronx park are monumental. You can't park for less than $2.00. At Shea the charge is $1.00.

Things we recall after watching the Giants in action against San Francisco and Baltimore and the rain-drenched Jets-Houston clash at Shea:

1) We never saw a more inept Giant squad than the one that was clobbered first by the 49ers and then by the Baltimore Colts. Same team that lassoed the Cowboys, you know.

2) Strictly off the two games we saw, the 49ers looked more impressive than the Colts.

3) It rained all during the Jet-Houston contest, with only 30,000 of the 60,000 "paid" customers braving the chilly wind and rain. It rained throughout the second half of the Giants-Colts contest.

4) No visiting player ever got a warmer reception at Yankee Stadium than the accolade accorded Old YAT, Y. A. Tittle when he returned in the role of 49ers coach. Two standing ovations in one afternoon. They don't even do that for Joe DiMaggio.

5) One of the inspiring sights at Yankee Stadium was our old colleague Bo Gill of the Newburgh Evening News dropping his camera and helping the ground crew restore the chewed up turf between quarters of the Giants-49ers contest.

6) You have to see Joe Namath in person to believe it. At the moments the Jets are 2-1 over the Giants in front drawer personalities. The Jints have scramblin' Fran Tarkenton but the Jets count two folk heroes in Namath and Jim Turner, who has booted eight of his last nine field goal tries.

7) The Shea folks like to brag that a combined 2,603 steps will take you from any parking area into the ball park. Longest safari is a 438-stepper from the parking lot across Willets Point Avenue.

Barry Hopkins, the former cross country star at Ontario Central, was one of six Oneonta State harriers who played a big part in compiling a four-year dual meet record of 47 wins, 8 losses and 2 ties for the Red Dragons. Also in the sextet was Jim Dever, the No. 1 runner, who compiled a record of 40 first place finishes in 44 meets.

John M. Snyder of Kingston, an assistant editor of The American Rifleman, describes the 1968 Boy Scout Camp National Postal Rifle Matches in an excellent article in the November issue of the National Rifle Association's monthly publication.

Roosevelt Race To Thorpe Marge

WESTBURY, N.Y. (UPI)—Thorpe Marge, rallying from last place in the field of five, won the $40,254 Lady Maud pace going away at Roosevelt Raceway Monday night before 15,773 onlookers.

Billy Haughton, fresh from a trans-Atlantic flight to Italy and back, reined the winner, a daughter of Thorpe Hanover—Adios Doty. Haughton had reined Flamboyant to an out-of-the-money finish at Naples in a race won by the two-time Roosevelt International champion Roquepine.

Haughton arrived at Kennedy Airport at 3 p.m. and had a short nap at home before showing up at the track to rein Hideaway Pudding out of the money in the third race. Then came the Lady Maud.

Thorpe Marge, returning a $7.20 mutual, paced the mile in 2:03 3-5. It was her sixth victory of the season and earned $20,127 for her owner, Robert Kawata of Evanston, Ill.

Tarport Karen, the 4-5 choice, finished second, a length back of the winner and a length before Quickie Hanover.

Del Insko, who reined Tarport Karen, earned $10,063 as his cut for owner Helen R. Buck of Far Hills, N.Y. The amount put the South Beloit, Ill., reinsman over the $1,000,000 mark in earnings for the third straight year.

Tag A Star (4) and Drum Major (5) combined for a $169.40 daily double payoff.

Amendola-290 To Tie Record

Mid-City 4-Man Classic bowlers had their shooting irons hot last night and the fastest gun of them all was Jim Amendola, who set new league records with a 290 solo and 672 series.

Amendola, who is recently in the horse set, added 204 and 178 to his 290 to break Gerry Kearney's old mark of 662. The 290 eclipsed the 277 held jointly by Kearney and Fred Linnartz. Runnerup to Amendola was LeRoy Lewis with 664 off 242 and 234. Cliff Miller decked 658 with 244, 242 after a 172 opener.

Our tire guarantee is 20 ft. high.
And 26,000 dealers wide.

The Lifetime Tire Guarantee that we give you is good. From Coast to Coast. So are the Mobil Tires that go along with it. So are the prices. C'mon in for the best tire deal in town. We guarantee that, too.

*Lifetime Guarantee New Mobil Passenger Tires are guaranteed against defects in workmanship and material for the life of the original tread. They are also guaranteed against normal road hazards (such as blowouts, fabric breaks and cuts) which render the tire unserviceable. If examination shows the tire has failed under the terms of this guarantee, we will make a reasonable allowance on the purchase of a new tire based on Mobil's current predetermined price for adjustment, plus applicable taxes. Allowance will be based on remaining tread wear as determined by tread-wear gauge.

This guarantee does not cover consequential damage nor damages from running flat or from wheel misalignment nor the cost of repairing punctures, nor tires marked "Second." Liability is limited to replacement of the Mobil tire.

Dear Abby

Improve by Being Yourself

By ABGAIL VAN BUREN
© 1968 by Chicago Tribune-
N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year-old boy, and a freshman in a fine college. I'm an honor student, am clean-cut in appearance and have been told that I have a nice personality.

Here's my problem: Girls have been making up excuses so they won't have to go out with me. I finally got a good friend of mine to tell me the reason. He said I make the girls "feel inferior intellectually." They complain about my extensive vocabulary and my forthright and persuasive manner of speaking.

I want to become a lawyer, Abby, and I've been trying to upgrade my vocabulary. I've taken courses in speech and drama, and have developed a very dynamic and impressive way of communicating.

Do you suggest that I abandon my efforts to escalate my intelligence and go back to my old ordinary way of talking. Or should I continue to improve myself?

FUTURE LAWYER: DEAR ABBY: I'm all for improving one's self, but when it comes off as superficial, arrogant and phony, it's no improvement. The most "persuasive and effective" speakers use words that are sure are understood by everyone in the company. Improve yourself, Buddy, but be your self. You'll go over better, and you'll be a better lawyer, too.

DEAR ABBY: Here is the scene. A man goes fishing and brings home a good catch.

Everybody in the family loves fish. I say the wife should clean them.

Chuck, my kooky buddy, says I'm crazy—not one wife in a hundred cleans fish anymore. I say he's crazy. So who's crazy?

TOM M. DEAR TOM: The wife who cleans fish.

DEAR ABBY: I've read you for many years but this is the first time I've written. I've been a social worker for nearly 40 years. Since you first appeared, I've kept tabs on your batting average, and it's better than most trained social workers I know.

I have a gripe, however. When some of your self-righteous women complain of "dirty old men," you seem to accept the terminology. You never mention "dirty young women," however. I am a consultant in a nursing home in which there are many elderly men, and I haven't seen a "dirty" one yet. But I see a lot of "dirty" young women on the streets every day.

By "dirty" the critical women include all older men who have an interest in sex. If "sex" is "dirty" then every normal person must be dirty. For a woman to complain because her husband looks at a waitress and other cute things is laughable. Why shouldn't he look?

Some young women dress to attract the attention of men. This is natural and I don't censure them for it. But modern styles (and cosmetics) provoke sexual thoughts and desires of men of any age. So if this is "dirty," then the sweet young provokers must also be dirty. I don't think so. I think they are normal, and so are the men who look. The only "dirtiness" is in the nasty minds of some women who can no longer attract attention. This is rank hypocrisy.

AN ASCW

CONFIDENTIAL TO SAM: No, I am not a "nut" on the subject, but I still think that anyone who smokes is advertising the fact that he has money to burn.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FOR ABBY'S BOOKLET, "HOW TO HAVE A LOVELY WEDDING," SEND $1.00 TO ABBY, BOX 69700, LOS ANGELES, CAL., 90069.

Horoscope By SYDNEY OMARR It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, NOV. 13, 1968

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Stick to practical course. Avoid one who is eccentric. Today, some boast. But quiet person with experience is of most value to you. Know this—and respond accordingly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good lunar aspect today coincides with greater freedom, added pleasure. Romance surrounds you tonight. You rediscover loved one—excellent also for dealing with children.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Domestic affairs, home comforts grab spotlight. Study possibilities of improving relations with family members. Don't permit pride to stand in way of harmony. Make first gesture.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis on short journeys, messages, ability to crystallize ideas. Be analytical. Know difference between rumor and fact. Neighbor may be alarmed over nothing. Keep your cool.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Some of your money concerns are relieved. You get chance to add to income potential. Key is willingness to assume more responsibility. Overtime could be requested. Co-operate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Cycle moves up. You are able to take initiative. Finish important project. Expand horizons. Means show interest in long-range possibilities. Personal appearance important. Spruce up.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Shake off tendency to be fearful. What is now unknown is due to come to light. Be confident. Initiate move—dine out with congenial person. Don't brood. Someone is working in your behalf.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Follow through on hunch. Some hopes, wishes can be fulfilled. Share knowledge, aspirations. If you confide in friend, opportunities multiply. Be sociable. Study LIBRA message.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Versatile approach could produce solid achievement. Lunar accent on advancement, prestige. Superiors impressed if you are enthusiastic. Social contract proves of value.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Favorable lunar aspect today adds up to completion of assignment—especially good for putting thoughts on paper. Write and read; add to knowledge. Utilize past experience.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Mystery could be solved. You need co-operation of mate, partner. Settle financial questions. Check agreements, contracts. Change is made and favors you. Pounce on new opportunity.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on public relations. Strive to improve image. Harmonize relations with associates. One who opposes you is in weak position. Play waiting game. You begin to build strength.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a determined individual who sticks to job until it is completed. Social life recently improved; make good use of contacts. Communicate with one at a distance.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for VIRGO, LIBRA. Special word to ARIES: adhere to health-work resolutions.

You don't need to gather the greatest possible number of points to have a good score in match point duplicate. All you need do, when it is your hand, is to score more than most other players will collect with the same cards.

East's two-club overall was made in accordance with best modern standards. He had a very good hand but did not want to make a takeout double with nothing in spades.

South's jump to three spades shut out West effectively. As a matter of fact a pass would have done just as good a job.

When the bidding got back to East he looked at his opponents' convention card and saw that they were playing pre-emptive jump responses in competition. Then he doubled.

This was a perfect example of the modern all-purpose double. It was primarily for takeout, although East would not mind if his partner left it in and showed just the sort of hand East held. A good hand with a good club suit, lots of high cards, and fair support for the unbid suit.

West recognized the bid and went to four hearts, whereupon North bid four spades. Had East been clairvoyant, he would have bid five hearts. That contract would wheel in because of the favorable position of the king and jack of clubs but East wanted a sure profit. He got it all right. West opened a club and the defense gathered two tricks in each suit except trumps for a plus 500.

This was less than the 650 they would have scored for bidding and making five hearts but it was good enough to get then 10 match points out of a possible 12, because at most other tables there was no real interference bidding by North and South, and the hand was played at a partscore contract. TV Axings Picking Up Steam

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The annual execution of television series by the ratings is beginning to pick up steam. Latest of the axings is NBC-TV's Phyllis Diller show, a weekly variety hour that will hardly be missed by either viewers or critics.

The amazing thing is that insiders, including network people, marked it for dead even before the season began, which makes one wonder why it was ever put on in the first place. In addition to a star whose material was overly familiar, the series had a difficult time slot—10 p.m. EST—and the murder of competition of CBS-TV's "Mission: Impossible" and ABC-TV's Sunday night movies.

NBC-TV's midseason heir to this enviable competition will be "My Friend Tony," a series about a couple of criminologists.

Only Replacement

The network says this will be its only midseason replacement which apparently means that the recent highly regarded special, "Soul," will not immediately have a crack at being an NBC-TV series.

Over at CBS-TV, meanwhile, the long-running "Daktari" has already been canceled and will disappear at midseason.

CBS-TV announced that the exit of "Daktari" will make room for the Glen Campbell variety series, which had a summer run as the fill-in for the vacationing Smothers Brothers show.

A number of shakeups are expected at ABC-TV. Britain's pop singer Tom Jones, for instance, will begin a weekly hour on the network at midseason.

And it is pretty well taken for granted that the highly successful "Peyton Place" is running out its last season on the network. From then on, it will probably make enormous sums of money in reruns with the more than 500 episodes it has on hand.

"Life" Continues

One ABC-TV decision, if it remains firm, is welcome. And that is the move to continue the new weekly series, "That's Life," despite its low ratings.

The show, an original book musical starring Robert Morse, E.J. Peaker and top-flight guests, concerns a young married couple—and will probably get a new midseason time slot to help it along.

Among the other ABC-TV series either marked for cancellation, or on very thin ice, are the Don Rickles show, "Felony Squad," "The Ugliest Girl in Town," "Journey to the Unknown" and "Judd for the Defense."

Some veteran series, meanwhile, continue to show renewed strength in the ratings despite very long runs. These include NBC-TV's "Bonanza," right up near the top again, and ABC-TV's Lawrence Welk show, by now an institution.

OFFICE CAT

By Junius Trade Mark Reg.

Overheard: "That Ruth is always knocking her husband. I never saw anything like it in my whole life. She's always complaining about her better half... Look at my husband, he's such a louse, he should drop dead, but do I ever say anything to anybody?"

The little boy came crying to his dad: Little Eddie — Ma just ran over my bike backing out of the garage.

Mr. Evans (his father) — Serves you right. I told you not to leave it on the porch.

The new minister was talking to the oldest inhabitant. Mr. Blake—I be 97 years old, sir, and I haven't an enemy in the world.

Rev. Black—That is a beautiful thought.

Mr. Blake—Yes, sir. I'm thankful to say that I've outlived them all.

If some women went down the street with their mouths closed they would be arrested on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

Jim Garberick (as he returned home one evening)—I've got to give up smoking. The doctor says one lung is nearly gone.

June (his wife)—Oh, Jim, Can't you hold out just a little longer until we get enough coupons for the new rug.

What you don't owe won't hurt you.

Mrs. Jones—Doctor, just what is wrong with me?

Mr. Smith—Madame, you are too fat. You use too much rouge and lipstick. You get your hair bleached. You smoke too much, and one other thing—you are in the wrong office. The doctor is next door; I'm a newspaperman.

There's a new cigarette on the market. It comes equipped with ear plugs for those who don't want to hear why they should quit smoking.

A rich matron customarily shunned busses and taxis and did her errands on foot. Then, suddenly, she began calling taxis for even the shortest distances.

One day a neighbor saw her stepping into a cab and called. Mrs. Johnson (the neighbor)—Why, Mrs. Jackson, are you taking a taxi again?

Mrs. Jackson—Yes. Let my heirs walk.

Astronauts Get the Orders For That Yule-in-Space Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three Apollo astronauts got flying orders today that only a few years ago would have been pure science fiction—Spend Christmas Eve and part of Christmas orbiting the moon.

The orders by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration were given at a news conference today on details for the flight scheduled for a Dec. 21 liftoff from Cape Kennedy, Fla. The details include at least two orbits of the earth to check out the Apollo 8 spacecraft, then start of the 250,000-mile trek to the moon.

Once there, the craft is to make 10 orbits about 70 miles from the surface during a 20-hour photography mission scheduled to begin Christmas Eve.

A Pacific Ocean splashdown will end the mission Dec. 28 after the spacecraft barrels through the earth's atmosphere at 25,000 miles per hour—twice the speed of earlier re-entries.

Apollo 8 will carry two 40-year-old men who have already orbited the earth—Air Force Col. Frank Borman and Navy Capt. James A. Lovell, plus Air Force Maj. William A. Anders, 35, making his first space flight.

The near-perfect performance of the 11-day Apollo 7 mission made possible the scheduling of a moon-orbit flight.

This will be the first use of the huge Saturn 5 rocket on a manned spacecraft. The Apollo 7 astronauts—Walter M. Schirra, Jr., Donn F. Eisele and Walter Cunningham—were launched last Oct. 11 by a Saturn 1B rocket, in the first such use of the smaller version of the Saturn series.

The Apollo 8 astronauts must fire braking rockets near the moon to reduce their velocity to lunar-orbit speed.

Chris' as morning the astronauts will re-start their rocket engines to re-ignite and break free of lunar gravity.

A successful mission would demonstrate to a great degree the capability of Apollo spacecraft to land astronaut crews on the moon about a year later.

However, the Apollo lunar module—the two-man compartment that is to detach from the spacecraft in moon orbit and deliver two crew members to the moon's surface, and later return them to the Apollo craft—has not yet been flight tested.

The first manned mission to include the lunar module will be Apollo 9, an earth-orbit flight planned for next March.

Borman and Lovell teamed on the Gemini 7 mission, launched Dec. 4, 1965, in which they ended doubts that man could function under weightless conditions for two weeks without ill effects. They served as target for the Gemini 6 spacecraft in the first successful rendezvous in space. They made 206 revolutions of the earth in 13 days 18 hours and 35 minutes, and landed 700 miles southwest of Bermuda, Dec. 18.

Lovell soared into space again on Gemini 12, the last Gemini mission, with Edwin Aldrin Nov. 11, 1966. In 59 revolutions around the earth over a span of three days, 22 hours and 34 minutes, they completed a rendezvous with an Agena spacecraft, conducting a tethered station-keeping exercise, retrieved a micrometeorite, experiment package from the outside of their spacecraft, and made the first pictures from space of an eclipse of the sun.

Report Arab Capitals Mulling Action Plan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser attended front-line maneuvers in the tense Suez Canal area Monday, while Premier Levi Eshkol indicated Israel won't give up control of the Tiran Strait its outlet to East Africa, Persian Gulf oil and the Far East.

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram reported Nasser spent seven hours atop a tank, watching a "massive" maneuver of tanks and armored divisions. It said he was accompanied by Defense Minister Mohammed Fawzy and Iraqi Vice Premier Hamed Ammash.

Al Ahram also reported wide contacts have been initiated among the Arab capitals to work out a plan of action following the "collapse" of U.N. envoy Gunnar Jarring's peace mission.

There was speculation in Cairo that Egypt and Jordan are again trying to arrange an Arab summit conference, which some Arab countries, particularly Saudi Arabia, oppose.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad returned to Cairo from New York two days ago and said Jarring's attempts to work out something between the Arabs and Israel had been rendered futile by Israel's insistence on face-to-face negotiations with the Arabs. Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban counter-charged that Riad had walked out of the talks in New York and "deliberately squandered in cold blood" chances for progress.

In Jerusalem, Eshkol told the Israeli Parliament: "Free passage for our ships in the Suez Canal and freedom to defend free passage in the Strait of Tiran are conditions for peace."

Egypt's closure of the strait at the Southern end of the Sinai Desert was one of the causes of the Arab-Israeli war in June 1967. The Israelis took the Sinai during the brief war, and observers in Jerusalem took Eshkol's remarks to mean that Israel will hold on to the area overlooking the strait.

Diplomatic sources in Jerusalem have reported that Foreign Minister Eban made clear to Jarring Israel's position on the Tiran Strait.

Up to now, the Old City of Jerusalem is the only captured territory the Israelis have said they will never relinquish.

The 73-year-old premier, recovering from a serious chest infection, said: "We have the strength to meet any trials that may be in store. The fact that we hold secure lines, although it cannot prevent bloodshed, is a barrier against the danger to our very existence."

At U.N. General Assembly in New York, Secretary-General U Thant again appealed to Israel to facilitate the return of Arab refugees to the territory on the west bank of the Jordan River which it seized from Jordan. He told the assembly's special political committee this would relieve the refugees' plight in Jordan and ease an enormous financial burden on the U.N. Relief and Works Agency.

Thant told newsmen that Jarring's peace mission is not ended and that the Israeli, Jordanian and Egyptian foreign ministers were prepared for more talks in New York or anywhere else Jarring wants to talk.

"We ought not to bury this mission, it is not yet dead," he said.

But Eban, who was scheduled to leave for home today, told a news conference Riad's statements and actions reflected Nasser's policy of no recognition, reconciliation or negotiations with Israel.

Mass Demonstration Still Set Sunday By Anti-Soviet Students in Prague

PRAGUE (UPI)—Anti-Soviet students today ignored a stern government warning and announced plans for a mass demonstration against Russian occupation forces.

Students leaders said they will put some 15,000 youths into the streets Sunday, national students day.

Premier Oldrich Cernik Monday broadcast a warning the Czechoslovak government could not tolerate further anti-Soviet demonstrations because they "could lead to chaos and even tragedy."

He spoke after a week in which youths across the nation ripped down and burned Soviet flags put up for celebrating the 51st anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution and in which workers and other citizens attacked persons emerging from a pro-Soviet rally. The student leaders today said, however, they have been trying to calm their followers the past two weeks in order to save their energy for a massive show of protest Sunday.

The protest movement was aimed against increasing Soviet repression. A current example was the crushing of the Czechoslovak dream of a free press, which came today with a Soviet-imposed program of arrests, expulsions, censorship and banning of major magazines.

Journalism sources said Prague's television workers today sent a delegation to Communist party headquarters to battle against the appointment of an old line Stalinist to replace the network's current chief.

A divided and demoralized

Communist party leadership has taken harsh measures against the mass media in an effort to prevent the Soviets from doing it.

The chances of direct interference by the Kremlin increased with the prospect of more demonstrations like those of the past two weeks when Soviet flags were burned and Red army soldiers spat upon. The nation's leaders warned against demonstrations that could "lead us down a dead end street."

Action against the press spread from Czechoslovak journalism to the West Monday with the expulsion of seven western newsmen, six West Germans and one American.

Five of the westerners were officially accused of working without proper visas. Two others had the correct papers but were ordered out anyway. All were arrested and questioned for more than six hours Friday, and their visas were held over the weekend.

The 21-member Communist party presidium launched the program against the press Friday at a meeting party sources said was marked by sharp clashes among the divided members. Despite the expulsions the presidium acknowledged the growing threat of direct Soviet action and approved a resolution that included a section detailing cases of "antisocialism" in the press. The resolution is to be presented at a meeting of the 190 member central committee Thursday.

The action against the press did not have to await the Central Committee meeting.

The presidium in its meeting Friday banned the party ideological journal "Politika" and approved the appointments of two old line Stalinists to head radio and television, the sources said.

Major NATO 'Package' Expected

BRUSSELS (UPI)—North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) leaders meeting here this week expect to produce a "package" of wide-ranging measures to shore up the alliance's defense in the face of increased uncertainty over Soviet designs, diplomatic sources said today.

The NATO Council of Ministers, gathering for a three day formal session Thursday through Saturday, is aiming at a variety of steps. They range from a freeze on further reductions of allied military contributions to the alliance, to a tightening of controls in the strategic Mediterranean, where Soviet naval power has built up to unprecedented proportions.

The strategy of the alliance, the scope of its future "flexible response" to any potential Communist aggression, the alert system against Warsaw Pact surprise moves—including the positioning of the alliance's 7,000-odd tactical nuclear weapons—are all expected to come under review.

In the wake of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia and the mobilization of the Warsaw Pact forces, allied political and military officers have been preparing detailed recommendations for a major overhaul of key provisions in NATO's defense shield.

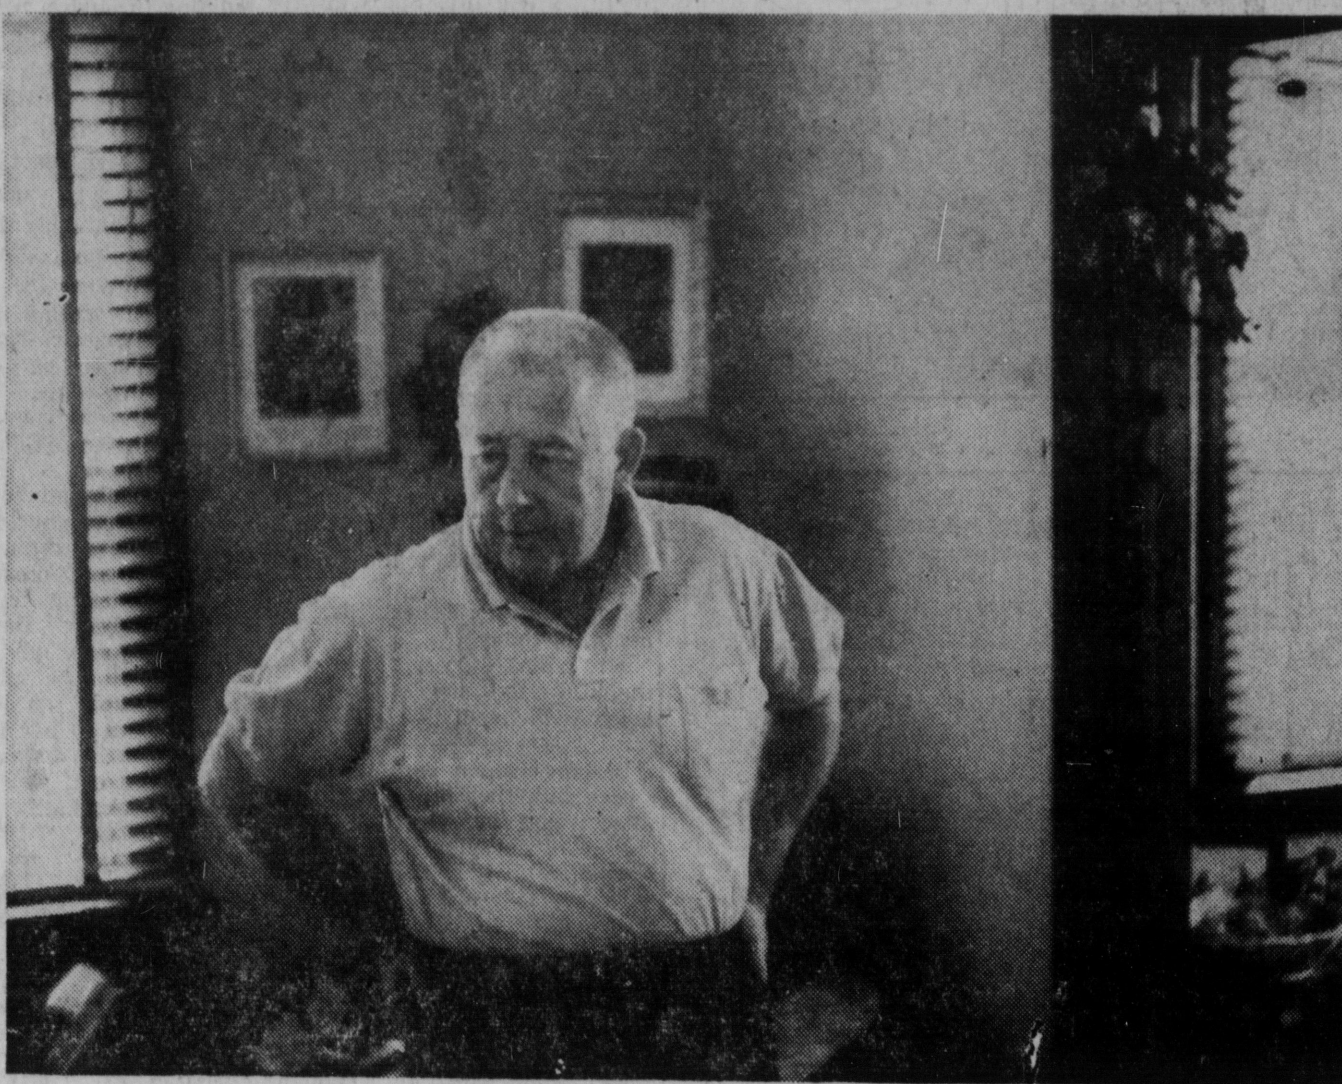

Allied defense and foreign ministers are to give their final approval to what is expected to emerge as a major NATO "package."

Very close study also is to be given to the question of Soviet intentions, in an effort to establish so far as is feasible what may be expected in the foreseeable future from the Kremlin, whose Czech action has triggered fears of a new threat from Soviet policy to Europe and the Mideast.

Up to now, the Old City of Jerusalem is the only captured territory the Israelis have said they will never relinquish.
